SIR STORM IN TOP COURT

Won't allow any impediment to SIR process: SC to states

SC extended deadline for Bengal's final electoral roll under SIR by a week, issued a show-cause notice to the top cop, and directed more time for hearings.

NEW DELHI

As the SIR battle heats up in West Bengal, the Supreme Court on Monday cautioned the Mamata Banerjee government against creating any "impediments" in the completion of the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls process in the poll-bound state, even as it assured that genuine difficulties in the process would be addressed.

The warning came as the court heard the Election Commission's (EC) response to a petition filed by West Bengal CM Mamata Banerjee challenging the SIR exercise in the state.

Chief Justice of India Surya Kant made the court's position clear, stating, "Whatever orders or clarification required, we will issue. But we will not allow any impediment to the SIR process. This must be understood by all states." The bench also comprising Justices Joymalya Bagchi and NV Anjaria emphasised that the revision exercise must proceed as scheduled. The top court also extended the deadline for SIR in West Bengal by one more week, from February 14.

Whatever orders or clarification required, we will issue. But we will not allow any impediment to the SIR process. This must be understood by all states.

—Surya Kant, CJI

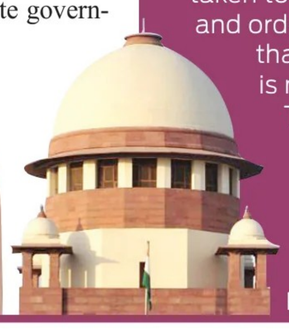
At the heart of the dispute is the EC's SIR of electoral rolls in West Bengal, an exercise that the state government has questioned. Banerjee has approached the court alleging irregularities in the process and questioning the deployment of thousands of micro-observers in the state.

The EC, in turn, has defended its actions and accused the state government of failing to cooperate fully with its requests.

During the hearing, the CJI remarked that 8,500 officers have now been deployed in connection with the exercise. "If done earlier, it would probably get approved," he said, in what appeared to be a reference to the timing of compliance by the state government.

A central point of contention in the case has been the deployment of micro-observers in West Bengal. The EC told the court that it had written five letters to the Bengal government specifying the officers it required. "They have not given," it said, explaining why micro-observers were deployed.

"On February 4, Banerjee appeared along with her counsels. There was an objection raised on the deployment of micro observers by the ECI, and it was stated by ECI that despite repeated requests, adequate manpower was not provided by the state government.



BENGAL DGP GETS SHOW-CAUSE NOTICE FROM SC

The Supreme Court also issued a show-cause notice to the Director General of Police (DGP), West Bengal, in response to reports submitted by the Election Commission of India (ECI) regarding widespread threats and violence directed at officials performing Special Intensive Revision (SIR) duties in the state. The bench directed the top cop to file an affidavit explaining the steps taken to maintain law and order and ensure that the process is not disrupted. The Court has also passed directions in order to streamline the ongoing process of SIR.

FIR filed over ex-Army chief's pre-print book leak; special cell to probe

NEW DELHI

The Delhi police have registered an FIR over the circulation of an unpublished book of former Chief of Army Staff Gen M M Naravane on social media, an official statement said Monday.

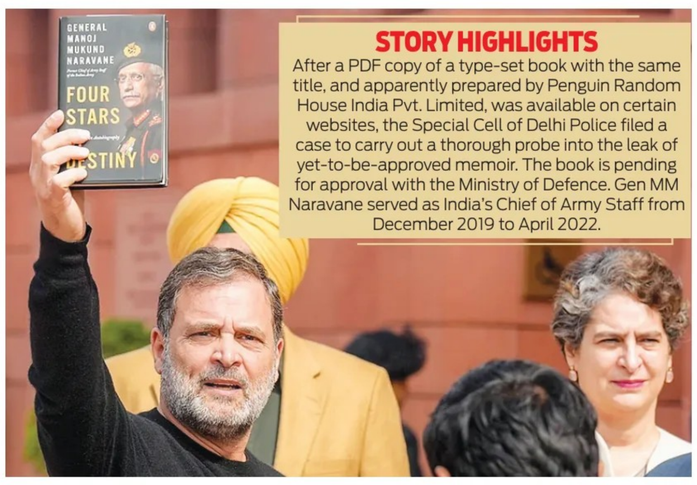
"The Delhi police have taken cognisance of information circulating on social media platforms and online news forums claiming that a pre-print copy of a book titled 'Four Stars of Destiny' is being circulated without mandatory clearance from competent authorities," the statement said.

According to the police statement, it was also reported that the necessary clearance for publication of this book is yet to be received from the relevant authorities.

"Upon verification, it was found that a PDF copy of a type-set book with the same title and apparently prepared by M/s Penguin Random House India Pvt Ltd is available on certain websites and, also, some online marketing platforms have displayed the finished book cover as if it is available for purchase," it read.

The police said a case has been registered with the Special Cell in order to carry out a thorough investigation into this purported leak or breach of a yet-to-be-approved publication and an investigation is being taken up.

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi was seen flashing a purported copy of the book in the Parliament complex last week. The matter has generated immense heat with the proceedings of the Lok Sabha getting disrupted and eight MPs getting suspended over the issue for the remaining part of the ongoing Budget session.



STORY HIGHLIGHTS

After a PDF copy of a type-set book with the same title, and apparently prepared by Penguin Random House India Pvt. Limited, was available on certain websites, the Special Cell of Delhi Police filed a case to carry out a thorough probe into the leak of yet-to-be-approved memoir. The book is pending for approval with the Ministry of Defence. Gen MM Naravane served as India's Chief of Army Staff from December 2019 to April 2022.

PM skipped LS fearing Naravane book issue, not security: Rahul

He dared those claiming that there was a threat to the PM to 'file an FIR'

NEW DELHI

Congress leader and Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi on Monday said Prime Minister Narendra Modi did not come to the Lok Sabha to reply to the debate on the motion of thanks to the President's address because he was "scared" of issues raised by the opposition, particularly references to former Army chief MM Naravane's book.

Rejecting claims that there was a security threat to the Prime Minister from MPs, Gandhi challenged those making the allegation to act. "If somebody has said that he is going to attack the PM. Please do an FIR, arrest that person. Why you are not doing that!" he said.

"There is no question of that. The fact is very clear the prime minister was scared to come to the House not because of the members but because of what I was saying and he is still scared because he cannot face the truth," Gandhi told reporters.

He insisted that there was "no question of the Congress members attacking the prime minister" and said Modi should have had the courage to face the House.

"He was scared of what we say, he was scared of being handed Naravane's book as a first step," Gandhi said.

The Congress leader also claimed the government was avoiding a wider debate on the Budget. "My guess is government is worried about having a debate on the Budget because the issue of the US deal, the way it was done, its impact on our farmers, is going to be discussed and the government does not want to do that," he said.

Asked about reports that Opposition may move motion of no confidence against Birla, he said, "You see what is happening in Parliament. You can see in this session, the LoP is not being allowed to speak."

"We should try not to make AI or mobile the master; some kids do not eat food unless they see the smartphone. We can use AI efficiently," he said.

He urged students to practice previous papers and have a good sleep to perform better at examinations.

"You will never feel tense after preparing well for exams. A good night's sleep will keep you cheerful for the rest of the day," Modi said.

Pickup Crashes into Electric Pole on NH-66; Traffic Halted for an Hour

UDUPI

A pickup vehicle crashed into an electricity pole on National Highway 66 at Kannukere in the Tekkatte area early morning on February 8, leading to snapped poles, fallen live wires, and a temporary closure of the busy road.

The incident took place around 5:30 am in front of a car showroom. The pickup, travelling from Udupi towards Kundapura, suddenly went out of the driver's control and struck the roadside electric pole with force.

The collision caused severe damage: several poles were broken, and live electric wires fell across the highway. This resulted in a power outage in the surrounding area and complete blockage of vehicular movement on NH-66 in both directions for approximately one hour.

Police Conduct Akka Pade Awareness Program at Government School

CHIKKAMAGALURU

In a continued effort to prioritize child safety and community outreach, the Chikkamagaluru District Police organized an Akka Pade awareness program at the Government Kannada Higher Primary School in Kaimara.

The initiative, part of the state wide Akka Pade (meaning "Elder Sister Squad") program launched by the Karnataka Government in late 2025, focuses on empowering women and children through proactive policing, patrols in vulnerable areas, and educational sessions in schools and public spaces.

The program is a collaboration between the Police Department and the Department of Women and Child Development, featuring dedicated all-women teams that include police personnel, often supported by NCC cadets or home guards, to build trust and encourage reporting of safety concerns.

During the session at the Kaimara school, officers from the Akka Pade unit interacted directly with students, delivering age-appropriate lessons on key safety topics. The program helped children understand personal boundaries and identify inappropriate contact.

Use of emergency helplines — including 1098 (Childline India for child protection issues) and 112 (the national emergency response number) was emphasized. Adherence to traffic rules was also stressed upon.

The Chikkamagaluru Police emphasized that "child safety is our top priority", underscoring the department's commitment to preventive education as a core strategy against crimes targeting minors.

The Chikkamagaluru District Police continue to urge parents, educators, and the community to support such initiatives and report concerns promptly via the designated helplines.

KRV Accuses Hejamady Toll Plaza Staff of Rude Behaviour and Abusive Language

UDUPI

Activists claim out-of-state employees at the Udupi toll gate are repeatedly mistreating local commuters with harsh words, escalating tensions after a similar incident at Sasthana last month.

Members of the Karnataka Rakshana Vedike (KRV) in Udupi district have accused staff at the Hejamady toll plaza of consistently behaving rudely and using abusive language toward local commuters.

Ansar Ahmed, honorary president of KRV's Udupi unit, raised the issue while speaking to reporters on Monday. He pointed out that the problem has worsened in recent weeks, following a widely reported incident last month where an ex-serviceman was allegedly harassed at the Sasthana toll plaza.

Ahmed specifically claimed that many toll plaza employees come from Hindi-speaking states and often fail to communicate respectfully with Kannada-speaking vehicle users. He alleged that even minor issues—such as low FASTag balance—are quickly turning into heated verbal exchanges instead of being handled calmly.

He recounted a recent episode on Saturday in which a local pro-Kannada organisation leader was reportedly abused by toll staff at Hejamady. Ahmed warned that if such incidents keep recurring, KRV activists will have no choice but to lay siege to the toll gate in protest.

Addressing the toll plaza management directly, he stated that the patience of local residents is wearing thin due to the ongoing conduct of the staff. "If things continue this way, we will be forced to take the fight to its logical conclusion and respond in a language they will understand," he added.

Ahmed called on the National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) and the concessionaires operating the plaza to give priority to hiring local youth from Karnataka. He also urged the police department to step in immediately, describing commuter harassment by toll staff as a routine occurrence that demands urgent intervention to restore order and respect at the toll points.

Renovated St. Anne's Chapel Set for Inauguration on Feb 11

UDUPI

The newly renovated St. Anne's Chapel in Thottam village near Malpe will be formally inaugurated and blessed on Wednesday, February 11, at 4:30 p.m.

Most Rev. Dr. Gerald Isaac Lobo, Bishop of Udupi Diocese, will lead the inauguration, celebrate the Holy Eucharist, and offer blessings to the renewed sacred space. After Mass, the faithful will recite the Rosary, followed by a candlelight procession from the chapel to the main St. Anne's Church.

A short programme will then honour the key contributors who made the extensive renovation possible.

The chapel traces its origins to the late 19th century. For many years, Catholics in Thottam relied on Milagres Church in Kalyanpur for worship. Eager for a closer place of prayer, prominent local resident Late Miguel Vaz secured permission from the Bishop of Goa Diocese to build a chapel. Work began in 1885, and the structure was dedicated on May 24, 1905.

When an independent St. Anne's Church was established in Thottam on May 19, 1933, the chapel came under its care. Weekly Mass was offered there to serve the growing community. Over time, however, the small chapel could hold only about 50 people indoors, forcing many devotees to stand outside during services.

In 2010, the Vaz family generously transferred full ownership of the chapel to the church administration. Under then-parish priest Rev. Fr. Frederick D'Souza, formal documents were prepared and submitted to the Bishop of Mangaluru Diocese, Most Rev. Dr. Aloysius D'Souza. The Bishop celebrated Mass there on the feast of St. Anne, July 26, signalling the start of efforts to improve the facility.

As the number of faithful continued to rise, the need for a larger, more functional space became clear. The current parish priest, Rev. Fr. Denis D'Sa, along with active cooperation from parishioners, spearheaded a complete renovation project. The Vaz family provided strong backing for the initiative.

The foundation for the new structure was blessed on May 28, 2024. The renovated chapel now comfortably accommodates around 250 people inside, with arrangements for nearly 200 more outside. The original altar has been carefully preserved and enhanced with artistic touches. Partial funding came from the Karnataka Government's Christian Development Corporation.

St. Anne holds a special place in the hearts of the faithful, especially women, many of whom attribute personal blessings and answered prayers to her intercession. It has long been customary for local residents to seek her protection before starting new work or embarking on journeys, Fr. Denis D'Sa noted in the official release.

The February 11 event will celebrate not only the physical renewal of the chapel but also its enduring role as a spiritual anchor for the Thottam community over more than 140 years.

District Begins Deworming Drive for Children Aged 1–19

Mangaluru

The District Health and Family Welfare Department has launched a large-scale deworming campaign targeting children aged one to 19 years, marking February 10 as National Deworming Day. Albendazole tablets will be distributed free of cost through government, aided and private schools, colleges and anganwadi centres. A mop-up round is scheduled for February 16 to cover absentees and out-of-school children through health and anganwadi workers. Health officials said intestinal worm infections can lead to anaemia, malnutrition, fatigue and reduced concentration, affecting growth and school performance. Poor hygiene, unsafe sanitation and unwashed food are key transmission factors. Children aged one to two years will receive half a tablet, while those aged two to 19 will receive a full dose under supervision after meals. The department aims to cover 5.56 lakh children in 2025–26. Authorities emphasised that deworming improves nutrition, immunity, attendance and learning outcomes while reducing disease spread.

Abduction of College Girl Thwarted; Assailants Stab and Flee with Bag

BELTHANGADY

A quick-thinking first PU girl bravely resisted three strangers who blocked her path and attempted to pull her into their covered-number-plate car. After she raised an alarm, the panicked attackers stabbed her and fled with her belongings.

Three unidentified men made a brazen attempt to abduct a teenage college student in broad daylight on Monday morning in the Sudemugere area of Belthangady taluk, but the girl's alert actions and strong resistance prevented a far worse outcome.

The victim, a first-year Pre-University student residing in Sudemugere near Belthangady town, was riding her scooter toward the Santhekatte bus stand around 8:30 am as part of her daily routine to reach college. While travelling along the road, a car suddenly cut across her path and blocked her way.

The men inside the vehicle had deliberately concealed the registration plate by tying a cloth over it. They stepped out and tried to forcibly drag the minor girl into the car. She immediately began shouting loudly and struggled hard to free herself from their grip.

At that moment, the assailants noticed another scooter approaching from behind on the same road. Startled by the possibility of witnesses, they panicked. In their hurry to escape, one of them stabbed the girl on her hand and finger with a knife before snatching her college bag. The trio then jumped back into the car and sped away from the scene.

Local people rushed the injured student to the taluk government hospital in Beltangady, where doctors are treating her wounds. Police from Belthangady station soon reached the hospital, recorded her statement, and launched an intensified investigation into the incident.

The daring daytime attack has left the local community shaken, with authorities now working to identify the suspects and recover the stolen bag through available leads.

Child Marriage Halted Just Hours Before Ceremony

BELTHANGADY

A simple annual mass wedding program organized for poor families nearly proceeded with a minor bride in a mosque setting, but verification of documents revealed she was born in January 2008—prompting officials to step in and delay the union by three months.

Officials successfully stopped an underage marriage in the Gerukatte Janata Colony of Kaliya village under Madanthyar on February 8, averting the union of a teenage girl who had not yet reached 18 years of age.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Asma and Ashraf, residents of the Janata Colony in Kaliya village. The proposed wedding was part of an annual initiative led by Guruvayankere, which identifies economically disadvantaged couples each year and conducts simple marriage ceremonies for them.

Preparations were underway at the local mosque for the event when information reached the Mangaluru Women and Child Protection Department that the girl was below the legal marriage age. Acting immediately, the department coordinated with the Kaliya Gram Panchayat Development Officer to intervene and prevent the child marriage.

Documents presented showed the girl's Aadhaar card listing her date of birth as January 17, 2008. Her birth certificate and school records indicated April 17, 2008, creating a three-month discrepancy. When officials pointed out that she was still three months away from turning 18, family members initially resisted the decision.

To clarify the matter, authorities summoned Ishwari K., the assistant headmistress of Gerukatte Government High School, who examined the school records on the spot. She confirmed the girl's age and verified that the marriage could not legally proceed for another three months.

After counseling the family and explaining the legal requirements, the officials persuaded them to postpone the wedding until the girl attains the minimum age. The intervention ensured the event was halted without further escalation.

Key personnel involved in the successful prevention included D.C.P.O. Yashoda from the Mangaluru Women and Child Protection Department, Annapoorna (Belthangady Women and Child Development Zonal Supervisor for Dharmasthala), Kunj K. (in-charge Development Officer of Kaliya Gram Panchayat), Ishwari K. KSRTC buses exempted from old DM notifications

The Dakshina Kannada Deputy Commissioner has exempted all Karnataka State Road Transport Corporation (KSRTC) buses from district notifications issued on January 5, 1991, and April 6, 1993, in a move aimed at strengthening public transport in Mangaluru city.

According to the order, the exemption is intended to improve commuter convenience and safety, particularly for women passengers availing benefits under the Shakti scheme and for patients travelling to public hospitals. The district administration said the decision would encourage the use of mass public transport in the city's core areas and help reduce dependence on private vehicles.

Officials noted that improved bus access would benefit students and daily commuters while easing congestion in busy zones. The administration reiterated that promoting public transport is a key urban mobility strategy to ensure safer, affordable, and inclusive travel options for residents.

Child Care Homes Must Provide Emotional Support, not Just Shelter: Tippeswamy

MANGALURU

Child care institutions must go beyond providing food and shelter and ensure emotional care and compassion for vulnerable children, Karnataka State Commission for Protection of Child Rights member K.T. Tippeswamy said on Monday.

Speaking at an awareness workshop at Wenlock Hospital auditorium, he said many children entering care facilities carry social and psychological trauma and require sensitive handling. Institutions should aim to recreate a family-like environment to support rehabilitation and reintegration.

He noted that implementation of juvenile justice laws has strengthened child welfare systems, with child welfare committees and special police units now functioning across districts.

Senior civil judge Zaibunissa stressed legal compliance by institutions, assuring support from legal services authorities. Child Welfare Committee chairperson Dr.Akshata Adarsh highlighted the importance of counselling. Officials and experts discussed documentation, protection policies and case management practices.

Railway Minister Announces Imminent Launch of Bengaluru-Mangaluru Vande Bharat Train

MANGALURU

Union Railway Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw has brought cheer to commuters between Bengaluru and Mangaluru by confirming that the much-awaited Vande Bharat Express on this route will commence operations in the near future.

Speaking at a press conference, the minister shared that electrification work on the Hassan-Mangaluru section has now been fully completed. Safety inspections, necessary testing, and certifications are progressing rapidly and expected to wrap up soon. Once these steps conclude, the timetable for the train will be finalized and services launched.

The new route will extend coverage across Karnataka's entire coastal belt, potentially reaching up to Karwar. To accommodate the corridor's length and demand, two dedicated Vande Bharat trains are planned—one running from the coast toward Bengaluru and the other in the reverse direction. This development is poised to significantly enhance connectivity, trade, and travel convenience in the region.

Vaishnaw also highlighted plans for a premium train service between Bengaluru and Mumbai, which is slated to begin shortly. Efforts are underway to advance the Pune-Bengaluru rail corridor project as well.

Currently, Karnataka operates 12 pairs of Vande Bharat trains, with assurances that the entire state will eventually be covered under this modern fleet. The minister expressed confidence that the central government, led by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, will fulfill these commitments just as it has delivered on previous promises.

Looking ahead, Vaishnaw discussed broader high-speed rail ambitions for southern India. The Bengaluru-Chennai high-speed corridor stands out as a key future project, potentially slashing travel time between the two cities to just 73 minutes. This would effectively merge the two urban centers, allowing people to conduct business, work, visit relatives, and return the same day.

Civic Body Imposes 3% Hike in Property Tax Ahead of Polls

MANGALURU

Mangaluru City Corporation has rolled out a 3% increase in property tax for the financial year 2026-27, a move issued by the administrator that has drawn attention amid expectations of impending local body elections.

According to officials, the hike aligns strictly with existing regulations. Every financial year, property tax assessments incorporate the prevailing revised guidance value (market rates). When no revision occurs, the law requires an automatic annual escalation of between 3% and 5% on the previous year's tax demand. For the current cycle, the minimum 3% increment has been applied.

The corporation's administration, headed by the Dakshina Kannada District Collector in the administrator's role, issued the order recently. Corporation Commissioner Ravichandra Naik clarified that the adjustment follows government directives aimed at ensuring civic bodies maintain steady revenue without imposing excessive hardship on the public. The rules also mandate that any revision should not result in a demand lower than the previous year's level.

In a small relief measure, a 5% discount on property tax payments has been offered for the 2026-27 year if settled by the end of April.

The tax applies across categories, including residential, commercial, non-residential, and vacant sites. Notably, vacant plots have been taxable for the past one or two years—previously, only built-up areas attracted the levy. Even for a 10-cent site with minimal construction, the entire plot area now contributes to the tax calculation, a change that residents have long described as burdensome. Complaints on this front reached the government earlier, but no major reversal took place, and the policy continues.

The decision revives memories of a previous controversy. In October 2023, revised guidance values were implemented across Mangaluru city limits, leading to a sharp doubling of tax slabs for various property types when applied to the 2024-25 assessments. That surge sparked widespread public outcry over the sudden financial load.

The then BJP-led council passed a resolution seeking a rollback and wrote to the government, triggering political exchanges between the administration and the ruling party at the time. Ultimately, no change was made to the tax slabs.

Political observers note that both the BJP and Congress are already calculating the potential gains or losses from the latest 3% hike. Should elections be announced soon, the property tax increase could quickly become a central campaign issue, fueling fresh rounds of blame and counter-blame.

While the annual escalation is a statutory requirement to strengthen urban local bodies' finances—one of their primary revenue sources—the timing has left many residents feeling the pinch at an inopportune moment.

Police Recover ₹70,000 and Arrest Accused in Swift Cash Theft Case

Mangaluru City Police have cracked a cash theft case with rapid investigation and arrested the prime suspect, recovering a significant portion of the stolen amount along with key evidence.

The incident occurred on February 7, 2026. Mohammad Nijamuddin, while transporting areca nuts belonging to Shridhar Alva in a Tata Intra vehicle bearing registration KA-19-AE-8663, sold the consignment at Ambar Supari shop in Bibi Alabiya and received ₹1,28,740 in cash. He placed the money in the vehicle's dashboard for safekeeping.

Around 10:30 pm, after stopping at Southern Agencies on J.M. Road near Bandar to purchase ACP sheets, he opened the dashboard and discovered the cash missing. A complaint was immediately registered at Mangaluru North Police Station as Case No. 18/2026 under Section 303(2) of BNS.

Led by Police Inspector Sachin Kumar, along with Sub-Inspector Sheetal Alaguru, ASIs Shashidhar and Damodar, and other staff from Mangaluru North station, the team conducted intensive inquiries.

On February 8, they apprehended the accused, Zakir Hussain alias Jackie, aged 38, a resident of Kasaba Bengre, at Mannagudda Junction in the city. From the suspect, police seized ₹70,000 in recovered cash, the two-wheeler used in the crime, and a Vivo mobile phone purchased using part of the stolen money.

The accused was produced before the competent court, which remanded him to judicial custody. Investigations revealed that Zakir Hussain is also wanted in separate cases: a house-breaking theft at night registered at Kundapura Police Station in Udupi district, and another theft of cash kept in an autorickshaw sheet within Mangaluru South Police limits.

The Mangaluru City Police Commissioner commended the North station team for their prompt and effective operation in solving the case and recovering substantial evidence.

Car Bursts into Flames on Busy Road; Driver Escapes Unhurt

MANGALURU

A Renault Triber car caught fire while in motion on a main road near the Bejai KSRTC bus stand in Mangaluru on Sunday evening, resulting in heavy damage to the vehicle despite a prompt response from firefighters.

The incident unfolded as the car was travelling along the busy stretch. Flames appeared suddenly without any prior indication. The driver immediately brought the vehicle to a halt and stepped out to safety.

Only one person was inside the car at the time—the owner, Munna Shetty. Kadri Fire Station personnel reached the spot swiftly and carried out firefighting operations. By the time the flames were brought under control, roughly half of the car had already been gutted by the blaze.

Fire officials believe a short circuit in the battery section is the most likely cause of the sudden ignition.

The rescue and extinguishing effort involved Kadri in-charge station officer Venkatesh S. H., along with firefighters Nagesh Devadiga, Prabhu Kumbar, Karthik, and Akshay. No injuries were reported, and traffic movement resumed after the operation concluded.

Extend shelf life of fruits, speed up trials: Chouhan

Scientists urged to develop new fruit varieties and spread technology for farmers' income growth

BENGALURU

Union Agriculture Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan on Monday called on agricultural scientists to prioritise extending the shelf life of fruits and vegetables and to fast-track trials of new crop varieties, saying both steps are vital to increasing farmers' incomes and reducing post-harvest losses.

During his visit to the Indian Institute of Horticultural Research (IIHR) in Bengaluru, Chouhan reviewed newly developed horticultural varieties and interacted with heads of several city-based institutes functioning under the Indian Council for Agricultural Research (ICAR). He said horticulture must play a larger role in doubling farm incomes, particularly by reducing wastage and improving market access.

"Along with grains, farmers should integrate fruits and vegetables with allied activities such as dairy, fisheries and beekeeping. Integrated farming models must be strengthened to ensure stable and diversified income," the minister said.

Scientists informed him that a newly developed crop variety typically takes around six years to reach farmers due to mandatory multi-location field trials. Chouhan urged researchers and regulatory agencies to work together to compress this timeline to about three years without compromising scientific rigour or safety.

"Our aim is to reduce dependence on imports of fruits and vegetables. We are already becoming self-reliant in certain crops like dragon fruit," he said, adding that researchers should also assess market demand before recommending crops to farmers. Varieties with better commercial potential and longer shelf life should be prioritised, he noted.

The minister proposed organising a national-level brainstorming meet on horticulture in Bengaluru, bringing together scientists, extension workers and farmers from across the country. The proposed meet would focus on practical challenges such as disease management, post-harvest handling, extension services and market linkages.

During interactions with farmers and agri-entrepreneurs, Manikanta, a tuberose grower from Doddaballapur taluk, requested wider availability of the IIHR-developed Arka Prajwal variety, which yields flowers throughout the year and helps stabilise incomes. Varun Kashyap, founder of a startup working on precision beehives, sought government support to create a structured value chain for beekeeping on the lines of the dairy sector, saying it would benefit small and marginal farmers.

IIHR officials briefed Chouhan on ongoing work in developing climate-resilient crop varieties, post-harvest technologies and disease control strategies. The minister assured continued central support for research initiatives that directly benefit farmers and consumers by improving quality, cutting losses and enhancing overall farm profitability.

Music speaks as words fail, NIMHANS turns rhythm into stroke rehabilitation tool

BENGALURU

When words falter and movement slows after a stroke, rhythm and melody are offering patients a new pathway to recovery. Neuropsychologists at the National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences (NIMHANS) are increasingly using music-based interventions as part of evidence-driven neuro-rehabilitation, helping stroke survivors regain lost cognitive, speech and motor functions.

At NIMHANS' Music Cognition Lab, specialists work with at least 10 stroke patients every month, integrating music into therapy to stimulate damaged neural networks. Dr Shantala Hegde, Professor and Consultant Neuropsychologist at NIMHANS, along with PhD scholars Preeti Kodancha and Shreyas Krishnakumar, has been leading this work for the past few years.

"These are not recreational sessions. We rely on neuroscience-backed, evidence-based

> "In neuropsychological rehabilitation, I use music very differently. I break it down into its fundamental components and use those building blocks to enhance core cognitive functions such as attention, memory, planning, decision-making and response inhibition," said Dr Shantala Hegde.

tools," Dr Shantala said. The music used is universal rather than culture-specific, and often very simple — a metronome, rhythmic counting like "1-2-3-4", structured rhythm patterns, syllables or short phrases. "The goal is to activate intact regions of the brain so they can compensate for areas damaged by stroke," she explained.

One such beneficiary is VS, a 42-year-old human resources professional from Bengaluru. With a medical history that included systemic lupus erythematosus and congestive heart failure, she suffered a left middle cerebral artery ischaemic stroke at the age of 37. After prolonged hospitalisation, she was unable to walk or speak and showed signs of post-stroke depression.

Nearly three years later, in April 2024, VS approached NIMHANS with persistent communication and cognitive difficulties. Detailed neuropsychological assessments revealed impairments in expressive and written language, verbal fluency, working memory, response inhibition, verbal learning, arithmetic skills and logical sequencing of ideas.

Alongside conventional therapies, psychologists introduced neurologic music therapy techniques to improve engagement and aid recovery. Rhythm-based exercises were used to support speech, motor coordination and higher cognitive functions. Over time, VS showed significant improvement in expressive speech, basic arithmetic, work-related engagement and independence in daily activities.

"Music is one of the highest forms of cognitive function, yet it is often dismissed as merely cultural or recreational," Dr Shantala noted. "In rehabilitation, it can be a powerful clinical tool."

Experts at NIMHANS believe such approaches hold promise not only for stroke, but also for other neurological conditions affecting cognition and communication.

Artificial Intelligence (AI) can revolutionise the film production process in production houses

Multimodel AI will do data integration of images, videos, voice, texts and other data required to create intuitive interactions in every field. India produces approximately 1800 to 2000 movies annually, accounting for 10 percent of the total number of projects initiated. The production cost for a film is estimated at around INR 100 crores, with a significant portion going to the leading actors. Successful films can achieve a worldwide gross of approximately 1800 crores. However, many projects are discontinued at various stages, resulting in unprofitable investments. Furthermore, the percentage of films that fail at the cinema is high across all languages and genres in India.

AI Transformation

AI can transform the entertainment industry by providing advanced customisation. It can create screenplays and suggest directors, cinematographers and production controllers based on AI-generated ratings and the script's nature. Casting can also be automated by analysing character roles and actor availability. Online contracts with actors provide data to AI, enabling it to schedule scenes based on their availability without human intervention. AI can access data from travel bookings and accommodation, incorporating locations into the schedule accordingly.

Digital Customisation

This is how AI can assist in the entire film production process. However, it will take the industry to a new level of total digital customisation. The initial stage will involve a film with no human actors. Each character will be portrayed by an AI clone of a real actor. The entire shooting budget will be eliminated, and audiences will perceive the film as featuring real actors, although they are not. Contract obligations for using the clones will be minimal compared to current remuneration.

Viewer-driven Customisation

The next level will be viewer-driven customisation. Theatres will provide AI-powered smart glasses or film glasses with an independent sound system connected via headphones. The platform will allow the public to select the language and based on this selection; actors and the language will change for each viewer. This will enable viewers to watch movies acted by actors in their own language. Traditionally it is done by separate shooting and dubbing.

Total change in Entertainment industry

The highest level is total digital customisation by the public. An OTT platform will provide access to select actors in any language with language selection. This will enable greater customisation as the same character is acted by multiple actors. Viewers can also choose who should act in a live performance. A fan of an actor can make him act in all the movies listed on the platform when he watches.

Public will be the superstar in the clone era, Rajesh Khanna may come as new romantic hero. New songs may from the voice of Mohammad Rafi and Lataji.

Human–wildlife conflicts: Linear policy to be rolled out

BENGALURU

With incidents of human–wildlife conflict rising across the country, the Union government is preparing to roll out a renewed linear infrastructure policy aimed at balancing development needs with ecological protection in forest and wildlife landscapes. The updated framework is expected to streamline the clearance and execution of projects such as highways, railways and transmission lines, while strengthening safeguards for wildlife movement and habitat continuity. Speaking on the sidelines of the second Indian Technical and Economic Cooperation (ITEC) workshop for International Big Cat Alliance (IBCA) member countries, Soumitra Dasgupta, Director (Programme), IBCA, said the revised policy would provide a more integrated approach to infrastructure development in ecologically sensitive areas. "The idea is not to stall development, but to align it better with conservation priorities," he said, adding that the renewed framework would help reduce conflicts triggered by poorly planned linear projects cutting through forests.

The Wildlife Institute of India (WII) is currently preparing the revised policy, which will lay down clearer norms for mitigation measures in protected areas and wildlife corridors. Dasgupta cited successful examples such as the elevated wildlife corridor through the Pench Tiger Reserve and the tunnel constructed across the Mukundra Tiger Reserve in Rajasthan. Interim studies by scientists monitoring these sites indicate that animals are gradually adapting to such structures, using them to cross barriers created by roads and rail lines, IBCA officials said.

The officials noted that the need for a robust policy is particularly acute in the northeastern and peninsular regions, where rapid infrastructure expansion has intensified human–wildlife interactions. Encroachments, habitat fragmentation and increased traffic through forested areas have led to a spike in conflicts involving elephants, big cats and other wildlife.

IBCA representatives also highlighted Karnataka's efforts to address conflict through a combination of mitigation and compensation. The State offers one of the highest compensation packages in the country for crop damage, livestock loss and human casualties caused by wildlife. "Bringing local communities on board is critical. Compensation, quick response systems and community participation play a major role in reducing hostility towards conservation," an official said.

Basava Utsava and Morambi Jatra Mahotsava Inaugurated With Devotion

BHALKI

The Basava Utsava and Morambi Jatra Mahotsava was inaugurated with religious fervour at Morambi village in Bhalki taluk, with speakers underlining the historic role of Basavadi Sharanas in the eradication of caste-based discrimination. The event was held at the Nandi Basaveshwara Temple and witnessed the participation of devotees, scholars, and community leaders from across the region.

Speaking on the occasion, Guru Basava Pattadevaru, Peethadhipati of Hiremutt Samsthana, said the caste system was extremely rigid and inhumane during the 12th century. At a time when social inequality was at its peak, Basavadi Sharanas played a decisive role in challenging and dismantling the caste system. Their work remains relevant even today, he said.

He praised the villagers of Morambi for organising Basava Utsava with great dedication, especially in rural areas. In many religions, only the founder's name is highlighted. But in the Lingayat tradition, nearly 770 Sharanas are remembered and revered. Basavanna elevated the common human being instead of placing himself above society. He gave the world its first form of a constitution through Anubhava Mantapa and ensured true freedom and dignity for women, he said.

Retired teacher Channabasappa Patange, who performed the Shatsthala flag hoisting ceremony, said human life attains meaning only when one understands one's true self and lives with ethical awareness.

Basava Kalyana Anubhava Mantapa coordinator Shivananda Swami graced the programme and delivered a spiritual message. Inaugurating the event, professor Sangashetti Shettar observed that the social challenges of the 12th century and the 21st century share many similarities. The vachanas of Basavadi Sharanas continue to guide our lives and offer solutions to modern problems, he said.

The programme was presided over by Suryakant Biradar. Kumari Sharada Sharanappa Allu presented Anubhava Nudi, sharing spiritual reflections inspired by Basava philosophy.

Several dignitaries and officials were present, including PSI Prabhakar Patil, Revenue Inspector Prashanth Kote, PDO Prashanth Kumar, Taluk Working Journalists' Association president Jayaraj Dhabashetty, MGSS director Ankushrao Patil, Sudhakar Jadhav, Basavaraj Hanumanthappa Biradar, Shankar Makaji, village elder Shanmukhappa Ucchakar, Rekha Srinivas Biradar, Khushi Appannakarade, Pratik Bhima Metre, Vijaykumar Varad, and Avinash. Khushi Appanna welcomed the gathering, Rekha Srinivas compered the programme, and Pratik Metre proposed the vote of thanks.

Early Detection Can Save Lives: MLA Yashpal Suvarna

UDUPI

Awareness and timely screening can significantly reduce cancer cases and help people lead healthier lives, speakers said

Cancer is a deadly disease, but early detection and timely treatment can save many lives, said Udupi MLA Yashpal Suvarna. He was speaking after inaugurating the World Cancer Day programme held at the district hospital premises in Udupi on February 9.

The programme was jointly organised by the District Health and Family Welfare Department, Udupi, Adarsha Multi Speciality Hospital, Adarsha Group of Institutions, National Health Mission, District NCD Unit, District Hospital NCD Wing, Indian Medical Association (IMA) Udupi Coastal Branch, Udupi College of Nursing, CSI Lombard Memorial College of Nursing, and New City College of Nursing, Udupi.

Addressing the gathering, Yashpal Suvarna said unhealthy lifestyles have increased the risk of cancer. He stressed that creating awareness about the disease, its early symptoms, and the importance of early treatment can effectively reduce cancer-related deaths. If people are informed and alert, cancer can be controlled to a large extent, enabling a healthier society, he said.

Highlighting Udupi district's achievements, the MLA noted that the district, known for education, tourism, and religious centres, has also emerged as a model in healthcare services. He praised doctors of the district for providing quality medical care and earning recognition even at the international level. He also lauded medical professionals for balancing their duties with social service by spreading awareness on non-communicable diseases.

He urged the public to take greater responsibility for their health by consuming nutritious food, engaging in at least two hours of daily physical activity, and undergoing regular health check-ups. He informed that construction of the new district hospital building has reached about 70 percent completion and assured that efforts are being made to complete the remaining work soon, which would further improve access to quality healthcare for the public.

On the occasion, MCH Hospital gynaecologist Dr. Kavita and Adarsha Hospital cancer specialist Dr. Ananth S. Mathad delivered special lectures on cancer awareness, early detection, and treatment options.

Free Paediatric Heart Health Camp Held

GADAG

A free paediatric heart health check-up camp was organised at Gadag Multispeciality Hospital with the objective of identifying heart-related problems in children at an early stage and creating awareness about child health among parents.

Speaking at the camp, cardiologist and chairman of Gadag Multispeciality Hospital Dr. Chandrakant Gadag said providing quality treatment to the public and reducing the number of deaths is the hospital's primary mission. He noted that the hospital has been offering continuous and dedicated medical services to people for many years, ensuring affordable and quality healthcare.

The camp was organised in collaboration with Rotary Club of Gadag and was aimed at children below 12 years of age. Dr. Chandrakant Gadag expressed concern over misinformation being spread about the hospital despite doctors rendering 24-hour service to patients. He urged the public not to believe baseless rumours and to cooperate in strengthening healthcare services.

He explained that the camp was organised to create awareness about child health protection and to detect heart-related disorders at an early stage, which can significantly improve treatment outcomes. Early diagnosis, he said, plays a crucial role in preventing complications later in life.

Rotary Club assistant governor Houshetti Patil attended the programme as the chief guest. He appreciated Gadag Multispeciality Hospital for providing quality treatment at low cost, especially to economically weaker sections. He said even patients arriving in critical condition receive timely and effective medical care at the hospital.

He also highlighted Rotary Club's continued efforts in social service, stating that through humanitarian initiatives, the club has been bringing hope and relief to thousands of families. Addressing the gathering, Dr. Sachin Gadag said the Rotary Club has been actively involved in social service for several years and assured continued support to such healthcare initiatives in the future.

REVENUE DIGITISATION DRIVE

Revenue Department Fully Committed to Digitisation: Min Gowda

GADAG

Revenue Minister Krishna Byre Gowda has said that the state government is fully committed to the complete digitisation of the Revenue Department to provide transparent and efficient services to the public, while putting an end to the role of middlemen. He was speaking at a press conference held at the Deputy Commissioner's office in Gadag on Monday.

The minister stated that before the present government came to power, there were 10,774 overdue cases pending in tahsildar offices across the state. Through a special drive, most of these cases have been cleared, and only 478 cases remain pending at present. He said officials have been directed to dispose of these cases at the earliest.

Krishna Byre Gowda further said that overdue cases in Assistant Commissioner (AC) courts have come down significantly. While there were 73,624 pending cases earlier, the number has now been reduced to 11,605. Of the 32,782 cases that were pending for more than five years, only 3,155 remain, and officials have been instructed to clear them within the next two months.

Referring to land issues faced by Bagair Hukum farmers, the minister said the government has launched the Nanna Bhoomi Abhiyana to resolve survey and RTC-related problems. He explained that 5,842 phodi corrections were carried out between 2013 and 2018, while 8,500 cases were resolved between 2018 and 2023. Since January 2025, survey and phodi correction work has been taken up in 1,93,615 cases across the state, with officials delivering services directly at the doorsteps of farmers.

On the issue of regularising undocumented habitations such as tandas and hattis, the minister said that while one lakh title deeds were distributed in the previous six years, the current government has issued 1.10 lakh title deeds in just two-and-a-half years. He announced that another 1.10 lakh title deeds will be distributed at a special programme to be held in Haveri on February 14.

Krishna Byre Gowda also revealed that the government has identified nearly 49 lakh land records still standing in the names of deceased persons and has begun transferring them to legal heirs. So far, 12 lakh original heirs have received land ownership. In Gadag district alone, out of 50,000 such cases, only 12,000 remain pending.

Pak faces vaccine shock as Indian supply dry up

NEW DELHI

Pakistan could face an annual $1.2 billion vaccine import bill by 2031 after India stopped shipments. The halt, linked to last year's military clashes, exposed Pakistan's dependence on foreign vaccines, as the country offers 13 free vaccines but makes none locally. Health Minister Mustafa Kamal warned that without local production, costs will soar when international support ends. Currently, Pakistan spends $400 million yearly on vaccines, nearly half funded by GAVI, the global vaccine alliance for poorer countries.

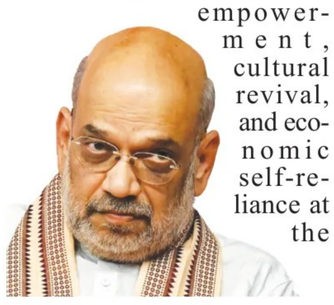
'PM promoted tribal culture, forest resources branding'

JAGDALPUR

Union Home Minister Amit Shah on Monday lauded Prime Minister Narendra Modi for promoting tribal empowerment, cultural revival, and economic self-reliance at the closing ceremony of the Bastar Pandum Festival in Chhattisgarh.



Speaking in Bastar district, Shah highlighted how the government has commercialised tribal products and traditions, creating livelihood opportunities while showcasing tribal heritage nationally.

Shah noted that celebrating the 150th birth anniversary of Bhagwan Birsa Munda as Janjatiya Gaurav Divas marked a key step in recognising tribal contributions to the nation. "PM Modi promoted tribal culture, food, and heritage, and also channelised and commercialised forest resources through branding and marketing of tribal products," he said.

The Bastar Pandum Festival, organised by the state government, drew large crowds and showcased the region's rich tribal heritage. Exhibitions featured traditional handicrafts, folk art, local food items, tribal dances, and vibrant folk music, attracting visitors from across Chhattisgarh and beyond. The event was inaugurated by President Droupadi Murmu.

Judges and participants praised the festival for preserving culinary and cultural traditions. Somaru Ram Kawasi highlighted authentic tribal foods, while participant Nisha Nag noted the revival of forgotten traditional beverages and porridges. Folk artist Shanu Markandey thanked the Tribal Development Department for providing a platform to showcase prayers, folk songs, and festivals like Chherchera.

Revanth Reddy once caught with money bags: KTR

wBharat Rashtra Samiti (BRS) Working President K T Rama Rao on Monday accused Chief Minister Revanth Reddy of corruption and misusing power while addressing a public event in Bhupalpally ahead of local body elections.

KTR claimed that Revanth Reddy was once "caught with money bags" while allegedly attempting to influence legislators for the benefit of Andhra Pradesh CM N. Chandrababu Naidu.The BRS leader criticised Reddy for using abusive and aggressive language instead of addressing questions about welfare schemes and governance. "Whenever people question the Congress government about its promises, the CM responds harshly rather than offering clarity," KTR said. He also described Reddy as 'Lagula Thondala' Reddy, highlighting what he called the CM's reliance on threats and intimidation.

KTR further questioned Revanth Reddy's role during the Telangana statehood movement and challenged his political credentials from that period. He said the CM uses vulgar and disgraceful language against the public, the opposition, and even women, undermining public trust and governance.

The BRS leader repeated his allegation that Revanth Reddy tried to manipulate legislators to favour Chandrababu Naidu, linking it to past controversies surrounding the Congress leader.

Video row: Owaisi seeks action against Assam CM

HYDERABAD : AIMIM president Asaduddin Owaisi on Monday filed a police complaint in Hyderabad seeking criminal action against Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma over a now-deleted video shared on social media. The video, posted by the Assam BJP on 'X' and later removed, allegedly showed Sarma aiming a rifle and firing at two individuals—one wearing a skull cap and the other with a beard—accompanied by the caption "point-blank shot."Owaisi described the video as "genocidal hate speech" and accused Sarma of deliberately outraging the religious feelings of Muslims, promoting enmity between communities, and making statements prejudicial to national integration. He said the chief minister has, over the years, repeatedly targeted the Muslim community through social media, print platforms, speeches, and other forums.The AIMIM leader added that Sarma had recently intensified such hate speeches with a conscious intention to incite communal tensions. Owaisi noted that the February 7 video, although removed, continues circulating on social media and depicted Muslims being targeted.He said phrases in the video like "point-blank shot" and "no mercy" were part of a deliberate act to inflame religious hatred, promote ill-will between communities, and potentially incite violence.

JAMMU

The Jammu and Kashmir government informed the Legislative Assembly on Monday that it has no proposal to regularise the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA) support staff working in the Union Territory.

Currently, around 3,800 personnel are employed on a purely contractual basis under the scheme across J&K.

The information was provided by the Minister Incharge of the Department of Rural Development and Panchayati Raj in a written reply to MLA Mir Mohammad Fayaz. These support staff are deployed at the panchayat, block, district, divisional, and UT levels, playing a critical role in implementing MGNREGA projects at the grassroots.

The government clarified that all MGNREGA personnel are engaged temporarily, either for the contract period or the scheme's duration, whichever ends first. They do not occupy sanctioned vacancies, and there is no proposal to change their status to regular employees. However, the department noted that the honorarium for these contractual staff has been periodically revised. The latest revision, issued under Government Order No. 49-RD&PR on January 30, 2024, increased monthly payments: Gram Rozgar Sevak from Rs 6,806 to Rs 10,209, Technical Assistant from Rs 11,000 to Rs 16,500, MIS Operator from Rs 11,000 to Rs 13,200, and Administrative/Accounts Assistant from Rs 6,806 to Rs 10,209.

The government added that any future enhancement of honorarium will be considered in subsequent meetings of the State Employment Guarantee Council (SEGC), ensuring continued support and recognition for the essential work of MGNREGA staff in J&K.

SIR row: SC issues show-cause notice to Bengal DGP

NEW DELHI

The top court asked him to respond to the Election Commission's affidavit alleging threats and violence against officials engaged in Special Intensive Revision (SIR) duties.

The Supreme Court on Monday issued a show-cause notice to West Bengal's Director General of Police (DGP) following allegations by the Election Commission of India (ECI) about intimidation and disruptions during the ongoing Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls in the poll-bound state.

A bench led by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant asked the DGP to file a personal affidavit addressing claims that, despite complaints, no FIRs were registered against those allegedly burning objection forms and SIR records. The bench, also comprising Justices Joymalya Bagchi and N.V. Anjaria, recalled a January 19 order directing police to maintain law and order during the process.

To ensure smooth SIR operations, the Supreme Court directed that all 8,505 Group B officers listed for the exercise report to District Electoral Officers (DEOs) or Electoral Registration Officers (EROs) by 5 p.m. on Tuesday. The ECI was granted discretion to replace current EROs and Assistant EROs (AEROs) and use newly available state officers, after brief training if necessary.

The court emphasized that micro-observers and state officials will assist only statutory authorities, with final decisions resting with EROs. To prevent delays, EROs were given one extra week beyond February 14 to complete scrutiny of voter documents.

The apex court noted that some erring officers had suspension recommendations ignored and criticized the transfer of necessary staff during the SIR exercise. The Secretary to the Chief Minister was asked to ensure proper action is taken on such cases. The ECI may replace officers not performing their duties, the court added.

TVK leader accuses DMK of funding polls with drug trade money

CHENNAI

Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK) General Secretary Aadhav Arjuna on Monday accused the ruling DMK government of failing to provide jobs, ensure women's safety, and control alcohol and drug abuse in Tamil Nadu. Addressing mediapersons, he also alleged that the DMK is using revenue from the ganja trade to fund elections.

Arjuna criticized the party for not fulfilling its election promise of creating 5.5 lakh jobs annually. "By now, nearly 28 lakh people should have received employment in their regime, but that has not happened," he said, adding that the government's failure has deepened issues related to women's safety and substance abuse across the state.

Highlighting the spread of alcohol and ganja, he recalled that Chief Minister M.K. Stalin and Deputy Chief Minister Udhayanidhi Stalin had previously promised total prohibition while protesting in black shirts—a promise that Arjuna said remains unfulfilled. He claimed that ganja is sold widely, even near schools, colleges, and TASMAC outlets, generating over Rs 60,000 crore, while only a few low-level offenders have been arrested.

Escalating his allegations, Arjuna claimed that DMK MLAs and MPs are involved in mobilizing large sums of money from the drug trade to fund election campaigns. "The main networks behind this trade are yet to be brought to justice," he said.

Tamil Nadu is expected to go to the polls later this year for the Legislative Assembly elections, and the issue of drug trade and misuse of funds is likely to dominate political debates ahead of the elections.

Tej Pratap denies relationship, warns of legal action

PATNA

Janshakti Janta Dal president Tej Pratap Yadav on Sunday strongly denied claims linking him to his former partner Anushka Yadav, calling them "baseless and misleading." Addressing a press conference, he dismissed rumours that he had a child and alleged the narrative was fabricated to tarnish his reputation.

"A conspiracy is being hatched against me. Some 'Jaichands' are continuously trying to defame me," Yadav said. He further alleged that former RJD MLA Mukesh Roshan, along with Sanjay Yadav, Shakti Singh, and Sunil Singh, were acting against him to damage his public image.

Clarifying his stance, Yadav said he had no connection with the woman in question and warned that he would take legal action against those spreading false information. "I will approach the court against the misinformation being spread about me," he said.

Expressing concern over his safety, Yadav said he had requested security from Bihar Home Minister Samrat Choudhary and would meet Prime Minister Narendra Modi if necessary. He claimed the sustained defamation and pressure were attempts to push him into depression.

NHRC TAKES SUO MOTU ACTION OVER DELHI MISSING PERSONS CASE

NEW DELHI

The National Human Rights Commission (NHRC) has taken suo motu cognisance of reports showing a sharp rise in missing persons cases in Delhi.

Data released by Delhi Police revealed that 807 people went missing during the first two weeks of January 2026, including 191 minors and 616 adults.

Of these, 235 individuals have been traced, while 572 remain unaccounted for. Acting on the matter, the NHRC has issued notices to the Chief Secretary of Delhi and the Commissioner of Police, seeking a detailed report within two weeks. The Commission said the issue, if confirmed, raises serious human rights concerns.

The NHRC's action follows a media report published on February 5, 2026, highlighting the scale of the problem. According to the data, 24,508 people were reported missing in Delhi in 2025, nearly 60 percent of whom were women. While 15,421 individuals were traced, 9,087 cases remain unresolved.

The figures also indicate a troubling trend among teenagers. Reports show that more than 5,000 teenagers, including around 3,500 girls, have gone missing in Delhi each year since 2016, highlighting the vulnerability of minors and young women.

The NHRC emphasized that these numbers require urgent scrutiny and have sought a detailed report from the Delhi government and police.

The report must review actions taken to trace missing persons and outline additional measures being implemented to address the rising trend. The Commission's move underlines growing concern over public safety and human rights in the national capital.

'Telangana CM 'shamelessly' indulging in appeasement politics'

HYDERABAD

Union Coal Minister and BJP leader G Kishan Reddy on Monday accused Telangana Chief Minister A Revanth Reddy of "shamelessly" seeking votes by appeasing minorities, referring to him as "Revanth Khan."

Speaking at a roadshow in Ramagundam, about 220 km from Hyderabad, as part of BJP's campaign for the February 11 municipal elections, Kishan Reddy criticized the CM's past comments linking Congress and Muslims.

"The CM is saying my name is not Revanth Reddy, but Revanth Khan. We can see how shamelessly he is speaking for the sake of votes," he said. The remarks were in reference to Revanth Reddy's previous statements that different communities have addressed him with affectionate caste-based titles, such as 'Revanth Yadav', 'Revanth Goud', and 'Sardar Revanth Singh', acknowledging his welfare decisions.

Kishan Reddy also alleged that both BRS and Congress have aligned with AIMIM for electoral gains and accused the parties of weakening the state-run Singareni Collieries for political purposes. He said the Telangana government owes Rs 51,000 crore to the miner, calling it the "sin" of BRS and Congress.

Reserve EVMs found in Solapur car, SEC clarifies

SOLAPUR

Two electronic voting machines (EVMs) were found in a car near a roadside eatery in Solapur district late Saturday night, raising political concerns over polling transparency. Elections to 12 Zilla Parishads and 125 Panchayat Samitis were held on Saturday across Maharashtra.

The machines were discovered around midnight in a vehicle hired for an election official near Hotel Swarajya in Mohol town. Following reports, political parties alleged possible tampering, and an NCP candidate demanded a detailed probe.

The returning officer, tehsildar, and police personnel immediately rushed to the site. A preliminary inquiry confirmed that the EVMs were reserve units and remained sealed. All machines used for polling had already been deposited in the strong room by 10.30 pm.

The Maharashtra State Election Commission (SEC) clarified that no irregularity occurred during polling. It said strict action would be taken against officials who failed to deposit reserve EVMs on time, but the sanctity of the election process remains intact.

According to the Solapur district collector and Mohol election officer, polling was peaceful on February 7 from 7.30 am to 5.30 pm at all 220 stations in the taluka. The SEC noted that the confusion arose because some reserve EVMs were not immediately placed in the strong room after polling.

Sharad Pawar hospitalized after breathing trouble

PUNE

NCP-SP chief Sharad Pawar was admitted to Ruby Hall Clinic in Pune on Monday after experiencing a persistent cough and difficulty in breathing. The veteran leader was initially at his Baramati residence before being brought to the hospital for urgent medical evaluation.

His symptoms worsened Sunday night, prompting immediate hospitalisation, according to his nephew, Shrinivas Pawar. Purvez Grant, head of Ruby Hall Clinic, has been briefed and will decide whether Pawar needs to remain admitted or can return home after receiving care.

Pawar's daughter, Lok Sabha MP Supriya Sule, is accompanying him at the hospital. A team of specialised doctors is closely monitoring his condition, and several diagnostic tests have already been conducted. Treatment and medication will be determined based on the test results. "The primary concern is a severe cough," Dr. Grant said. "We will examine him and determine the necessary steps. Admission will depend on his clinical condition."

Sharad Pawar has a history of health issues, including oral cancer surgery before 2004, with follow-up treatments in India and the US. His hospital visit comes after recent personal losses, including the tragic death of his nephew and Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister Ajit Pawar in a plane crash.

The Ruby Hall administration confirmed that a thorough medical assessment is underway, and any decision regarding admission will be made after careful evaluation. NCP workers and office-bearers from across Maharashtra have been visiting Pawar to offer support during this period.

CRYPTO FRAUD

ED seizes cryptocurrency, cash from call centre

HYDERABAD

The Enforcement Directorate (ED) has seized cryptocurrency worth $12,000 and Rs 13.5 lakh unaccounted cash during searches at six Ahmedabad locations linked to illegal call centre operations cheating foreign nationals, mainly from the US.

The Hyderabad Zonal Office conducted the searches on February 4 under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002.

The investigation began following FIRs registered by Cyberabad police and the CBI, IOD, New Delhi, related to organised cyber fraud and impersonation. ED revealed the call centres were run by accused persons including Mohammed Ansari, Akib Ghanchi, Vikas Kumar, Divyang Raval, and Pradip Rathod along with their associates. The centres shared a common technical setup, trained staff, call scripts, and centralised money-handling.

The operators impersonated US government officials or private company representatives, intimidating victims over loans, taxes, or legal issues, forcing them to buy gift cards or make digital payments. Proceeds were converted into cryptocurrency, including Bitcoin, through online platforms such as Paxful, or handled via cash and informal channels like hawala operators. During the searches, cryptocurrency in Akib Ghanchi's possession and cash totaling Rs 13.5 lakh were seized. Incriminating documents and digital devices were recovered, while 31 bank accounts and a locker of the accused were frozen. ED found that the group accumulated substantial assets in their names, family members, and proxies using proceeds of crime.

The cartel continues similar fraudulent activities using the same methods. ED stated that further investigation is ongoing to identify other accomplices and recover additional assets.

Iran Refuses Giving Up Uranium Enrichment Talks

Iran insists it will not stop uranium enrichment despite US military threats and ongoing economic sanctions

TEHRAN

Iran has ruled out giving up uranium enrichment in its talks with the United States, despite rising tensions in the Middle East. Iranian Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi said on Sunday that US military actions, including the arrival of the USS Abraham Lincoln aircraft carrier in the Arabian Sea, do not scare Tehran.

Araghchi spoke at a forum in Tehran, emphasizing that Iran has little trust in Washington. He expressed doubt that the US is taking renewed negotiations seriously. On February 6, the two countries resumed talks in Oman for the first time since Israel's 12-day war with Iran in June 2025.

Iran is also consulting with its "strategic partners" China and Russia about the negotiations.

"We refuse to give up enrichment, even if war is imposed on us," Araghchi said. He added that no country has the right to dictate Iran's policies.

The Iranian government is seeking relief from US economic sanctions. Araghchi suggested this could involve "a series of confidence-building measures" concerning Iran's nuclear program. Western nations and Israel suspect Iran wants to build an atomic bomb, but Tehran denies this. "Our atomic bomb is the power to say 'no' to the great powers," Araghchi said.

The US and Israel want the talks to include Iran's ballistic missiles and regional support for armed groups, which Iran refuses. US envoy Steve Witkoff and Jared Kushner visited the USS Abraham Lincoln last Saturday. Witkoff said the carrier is "keeping us safe and upholding President Trump's message of peace through strength."

Even as President Trump called the talks "very good" and Iran's President Masoud Pezeshkian said they are a "step forward," the threat of war looms. Following the talks, the US imposed fresh tariffs on countries trading with Iran and announced sanctions on shipping entities, aiming to curb Iranian oil exports.

Araghchi concluded that ongoing sanctions and military actions raise doubts about the US's seriousness in pursuing genuine negotiations.

Sikyong Penpa Tsering Advances Tibet Cause Abroad

Sikyong Penpa Tsering met US officials and think tanks to discuss Tibet, counter disinformation, and promote religious freedom before traveling to Geneva for international forums

WASHINGTON

Sikyong Penpa Tsering, the elected leader of the Central Tibetan Administration, recently concluded a series of high-level meetings in Washington, DC, aimed at raising global support for the Tibetan cause.

On February 5, he met US Senator Jeff Merkley, a longtime advocate for Tibet and the original sponsor of the bipartisan Resolve Tibet Act of 2024, according to the Central Tibetan Administration (CTA). The meeting highlighted continued US legislative backing for Tibet's cultural and religious rights.

The following day, Sikyong engaged with the US-China Economic and Security Review Commission, marking the end of his official US visit. During his stay, he also participated in discussions with leading think tanks about the growing disinformation challenges posed by the People's Republic of China.

Sikyong addressed the International Religious Freedom Conference and took part in a fireside chat at the Atlantic Council, sharing perspectives on Tibetan democracy, leadership succession, and the protection of religious freedom. He was accompanied by Representative Namgyal Choedup of the Office of Tibet, Washington, DC, and President Tencho Gyatso of the International Campaign for Tibet.

Throughout his visit, Sikyong met long-standing supporters from across the US political spectrum and emphasized the importance of sustained legislative and advocacy efforts for Tibet. He also engaged younger members of Congress, urging them to maintain bipartisan support for Tibet in the future.

After concluding his official engagements, Sikyong departed Washington on February 7 to attend the Geneva Forum 2026. Earlier, the Australian All-Party Parliamentary Group for Tibet held discussions on plans to support Tibet amid the Autumn parliamentary session.

The CTA continues to press for genuine autonomy, protection of human rights, religious freedom, and the Tibetan people's right to peacefully determine their future, as China has controlled Tibet since 1950.

ETGE Commemorates Ghulja Massacre, Calls For Action

WASHINGTON

The East Turkistan Government in Exile (ETGE) marked the 29th anniversary of the 1997 Ghulja Massacre, calling for decisive international action against China's policies in East Turkistan, according to a post on X.

The commemoration honored victims of one of the most serious atrocities committed by Chinese authorities in occupied East Turkistan. On February 5, 1997, thousands of Uyghurs, Kazakhs, and other Turkic peoples staged a peaceful protest in Ghulja against political, religious, and cultural repression. Chinese forces responded with live fire, mass arrests, and alleged executions, resulting in hundreds of deaths and thousands detained or disappeared. ETGE described the massacre as a precursor to a wider genocidal campaign that intensified after 2014.

Events were organized in Washington, DC, and internationally, including gatherings outside the US Department of State. ETGE stressed that remembrance should lead to accountability and concrete measures.

Human Rights Watch reports China deepened control in 2025, suppressing freedoms and targeting minorities severely

China Intensifies Repression Nationwide, Human Rights Watch Reports

BANGKOK

The Chinese government significantly intensified repression across the country in 2025, Human Rights Watch (HRW) said in its World Report 2026. Under President Xi Jinping, authorities tightened ideological control and curtailed fundamental freedoms, particularly targeting minority and religious communities.

HRW highlighted that Tibetans, Uyghurs, members of unofficial Christian churches, and other minority groups faced the harshest violations. The report also noted a sharp rise in repression in Hong Kong. "The Chinese government under Xi Jinping has amassed an increasingly disastrous human rights record," said Maya Wang, HRW Deputy Asia Director. She added that foreign governments have largely failed to counter Beijing's growing threats to international human rights.

The 529-page report, HRW's 36th edition, reviews human rights in over 100 countries. Executive Director Philippe Bolopion warned that reversing global authoritarian trends is a generational challenge, urging democracies and civil society to form strategic alliances to defend freedoms.

Xi Jinping's visits to Tibet in August and Xinjiang in September 2025 aimed to showcase strict state control. Authorities plan new laws to further repress minorities, strengthen ideological oversight, and expand China's influence abroad. Thousands of Uyghurs reportedly remain imprisoned, while Dalai Lama birthday celebrations were banned in Tibet.

In Hong Kong, repression intensified under the National Security Law. The League of Social Democrats disbanded, and several pro-democracy figures, including Jimmy Lai, remain imprisoned. HRW reported campaigns to "sinicize" religions, forcing churches to align with party ideology. Dozens of Protestant church members were arrested or sentenced on charges such as fraud.

HRW also documented arbitrary detentions, including harassment of overseas activists and their families. Cases included the arrest of France-based student Tara Zhang Yadi and pressure on filmmakers linked to the IndieChina festival in New York.

The report called on Beijing to end abuses in Xinjiang, repeal Hong Kong's security laws, allow independent observers in Tibet and Xinjiang, and release detained human rights defenders.

BNM PROTESTS GERMANY HIGHLIGHT BALOCHISTAN HUMAN RIGHTS VIOLATIONS

MUNICH

The Baloch National Movement (BNM) organized a protest at Porta Nigra Square in Trier, Germany, to draw attention to alleged human rights violations in Balochistan, according to a post shared by the group on X. Human rights activists and Baloch supporters participated, raising concerns about enforced disappearances, extrajudicial killings, arbitrary arrests, and state repression of political activists and human rights defenders. BNM claimed these actions were carried out systematically by the Pakistani state. Protesters urged the international community, media, and human rights organizations to acknowledge the ongoing situation in the region. Placards, banners, and speeches highlighted the impact on women, children, and families of the disappeared. Speakers stressed that families, especially mothers and children, have long sought justice and the safe return of their loved ones through peaceful means but often face collective punishment instead. BNM leaders, including Luqman Baloch, Wajahat Baloch, Asif Baloch, Mujeeb Abdullah, Shariq Baloch, and Habib Baloch, condemned enforced disappearances, extrajudicial killings, and civilian-targeted operations.

FGEHA Housing Projects Bhara Kahu Face Major Delays

ISLAMABAD

The Federal Government Employees Housing Authority (FGEHA) housing projects in Bhara Kahu are facing significant delays, causing frustration among allottees and members.

The Sky Gardens and Green Enclave projects have missed their scheduled completion deadlines, with construction progressing slowly. Sky Gardens, a joint venture signed on October 11, 2019, with M/s Commoners Sky Gardens, covers around 11,000 kanals in Mauza Kathar and Mengal, Murree. Phase I of the project is about 40 percent complete, while Phase II stands at 42 percent. Sector A work is finished, and 80 plots were handed over on July 3, 2025. Blocks G and D are expected to be ready by March 2026.

Green Enclave-I, launched in 2009, has faced prolonged delays due to legal disputes and disagreements between the government and contractors. Although construction resumed later, the project remains incomplete.FGEHA, under the Ministry of Housing, has struggled to complete several housing and apartment schemes on time. Other delayed or stalled projects include F-14 and F-15 sectors, Lifestyle Afro Apartments, Park Road Housing Scheme, and Skyline Apartments in Chaklala. Development has not yet started in F-12 and G-12 due to land acquisition issues. However, the authority has recently taken steps to speed up progress. Infrastructure development contracts worth approximately Rs19 billion have been awarded for F-14 and F-15, and contractors have been mobilized to begin work. Allottees remain concerned about delays and uncertainty over possession dates, highlighting the need for stricter monitoring and timely completion of FGEHA projects to meet public expectations.

SPACEX GOAL

Elon Musk Plans Self-Growing City on Moon Soon

CAPE CANAVERAL

Elon Musk, the CEO of SpaceX, recently shared exciting news for space lovers on his social media platform X. On Sunday, he revealed that SpaceX is now focusing on creating a "self-growing city" on the Moon. Musk said this project could be completed in less than ten years.

In his post, Musk explained that reaching Mars is more difficult because trips are only possible when the planets align every 26 months, taking about six months per journey. In contrast, launches to the Moon could happen every 10 days and take only two days to arrive. This faster schedule, he said, allows SpaceX to build a Moon city much more quickly than a Mars city.

Musk also emphasized that SpaceX's main goal remains to extend human life and consciousness to the stars. He said the company would eventually work on a Mars city, aiming to start within five to seven years, but the Moon is the first priority due to its faster timeline.

The announcement supports a report from the Wall Street Journal earlier this month. According to the report, SpaceX informed investors that it is prioritizing the Moon before focusing on Mars.

Building a city on the Moon is not without competition. The United States faces significant challenges from China, which is also planning crewed lunar missions. The last human landing on the Moon was the U.S. Apollo mission in 1972, making these upcoming projects especially significant.

Musk's bold vision for a self-growing Moon city highlights how private companies are increasingly leading space exploration. If successful, it could mark the start of a new era in human space settlement.

India-US Trade Deal Opens Vast American Export Market

Landmark trade pact lowers duties, expands US access for Indian goods

NEW DELHI

The India-US Bilateral Trade Agreement marks a major step in India's global trade strategy and gives exporters steady and preferred access to the huge US market valued at over $30 trillion. An official statement said the deal brings wide tariff cuts, zero-duty access for many products, stronger digital and technology cooperation, and safeguards for farmers, small businesses, and domestic industry. India exported goods worth $86.35 billion to the United States in 2024. Under the new agreement, several sectors will become more competitive. Tariffs on $30.94 billion worth of exports have been cut from 50 per cent to 18 per cent, while duties on another $10.03 billion have been reduced to zero. This will allow many Indian products to enter the US at lower prices. Textiles and apparel, which employ millions, will see duties fall sharply, while silk products will enjoy zero duty in a large US market. Machinery exports will also benefit, with tariffs lowered to 18 per cent, opening new opportunities in a market worth $477 billion.

Leather and footwear exports have gained strongly, with India becoming a preferred supplier as duties drop to 18 per cent in a $42 billion market. This is expected to boost jobs, especially in MSMEs and manufacturing clusters.

Gems and jewellery exports will see similar gains, with tariffs reduced to 18 per cent and zero duty access for diamonds, platinum, and coins. Agricultural exports worth $1.36 billion will enter the US without additional duties, helping spices, tea, coffee, fruits, nuts, and processed foods. Sensitive sectors like dairy, meat, poultry, and cereals remain fully protected. The agreement also creates an advantage as rival exporting nations continue facing higher tariffs in the American market compared with India's products.

India Adopts Decade-Long Tariff Elimination Plan

The Government of India has announced a structured approach to agricultural market access under the India US Bilateral Trade Agreement, combining immediate duty elimination, phased cuts over up to ten years, tariff reductions, and quota mechanisms while protecting sensitive crops. Highly sensitive sectors such as meat, poultry, dairy, GM foods, maize, millets, pulses, certain fruits, oilseeds, honey, ethanol, tobacco, and selected animal feed remain fully protected under an exemption category. Products used by India's food processing industry, including albumins, coconut oil, castor oil, stearin, and modified starches, will see phased tariff elimination over a decade, providing domestic stakeholders time to adjust.

Certain sensitive items, including olives, pyrethrum, and parts of plants, have received measured tariff reductions, while select goods like in-shell almonds, walnuts, pistachios, and lentils will enter via Tariff Rate Quotas at reduced duties. Alcoholic beverages will follow tariff reduction and minimum import price guidelines, consistent with India's earlier trade agreements.

Union Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal said Indian agricultural exports to the US will face lower reciprocal tariffs than competitors, with items such as tea, coffee, spices, coconut, coconut oil, and vegetable wax enjoying zero-duty access. India currently maintains a USD 1.3 billion trade surplus in agricultural trade with the US, exporting USD 3.4 billion and importing USD 2.1 billion in 2024.

Goyal assured that India's farmers, MSMEs, artisans, and craftsmen would not face losses, while benefiting from broader US market access, ensuring a careful balance between opening markets and protecting domestic agriculture.

Chidambaram Calls Budget Forgettable, Flags Job Crisis

NEW DELHI

Speaking in the Rajya Sabha on Monday, Congress leader and former Finance Minister P Chidambaram described the Union Budget 2026-27 as cautious, parsimonious, and forgettable, claiming it is already fading from public memory. He said the government appeared unwilling to confront hard truths highlighted in the Economic Survey, questioning whether ministers had even read the lengthy document.

Chidambaram pointed to three major problems identified in the survey, capital investment, unemployment, and slowing growth, and argued the Budget failed on all three fronts. He noted that gross fixed capital formation remains around 30 per cent of GDP, while net foreign investment has fallen sharply to negligible levels. Despite companies holding cash, private investment is weak, and capital spending was cut by Rs 0.44 lakh crore without clear reasons.

On jobs, he said youth unemployment is 15 per cent, regular jobs cover less than a quarter of workers, and factory employment remains tiny. He criticised the PM Internship Scheme, saying most offers were rejected and only a few thousand interns were finally retained. Chidambaram accused the Budget of forgetting promises, pointing to low funding or cuts in defence, science, welfare, and urban development.

On growth, he said nominal GDP growth is slowing steadily, while official real growth numbers appear overstated and unconvincing. He added that fiscal repair is weak, with only marginal deficit reduction, and claimed the Budget survived mainly due to spending cuts and a large RBI dividend. He concluded the Budget lacks vision, avoids real problems, and will soon be forgotten as new issues dominate headlines. He urged the government to rethink priorities, invest boldly, create quality jobs, and restore confidence among workers, investors, and young citizens across the country.

Former finance minister P Chidambaram strongly criticised the Union Budget, saying it ignores jobs, investment, and growth challenges facing India

US tariff cut lifts India's AYUSH exports

AHMEDABAD

India's AYUSH and nutraceutical sectors are set to benefit from US tariff reductions under the India–US Interim Trade Deal, said Lal Hingorani, Founder of Pharmanza Herbal Pvt Ltd. He noted that earlier tariffs of 50 per cent had strained exporters with thin margins, and the cut to 18 per cent will provide immediate relief. However, Hingorani said pricing pressures remain, as buyers seek low costs while exporters face high expenses due to FDA compliance and quality standards. The AYUSH sector—covering Ayurveda, Yoga, Unani, Siddha, and Homeopathy—plays a major role in India's herbal exports. In FY25, AYUSH exports to the US reached USD 688.89 million, growing 6.11 per cent, led by products such as Ashwagandha, Turmeric, Ginger, Neem, Tulsi, Brahmi, and Shatavari. Announced on February 6, 2026, the interim deal is the first step toward a broader bilateral trade agreement. It includes tariff rationalisation, removal of non-tariff barriers, rules of origin, supply chain cooperation, and digital trade provisions. The US has also withdrawn an additional 25 per cent duty, boosting India's competitiveness.

Trade agreements open Indian and global markets, creating strong opportunities, says Tata Sons Chairman N Chandrasekaran

Stalin Inaugurates Tata JLR Plant, Calls It Golden Day

RANIPET

Chief Minister MK Stalin described the start of vehicle production by Tata Motors in Ranipet as a major industrial achievement for Tamil Nadu. Addressing the inauguration of the Tata Motors passenger vehicle and Jaguar Land Rover plant at Panapakkam, he called the occasion a "golden day" for the state. He thanked the Tata Group for investing Rs 9,000 crore in the district and said the company's confidence in Tamil Nadu reflected the state's strong industrial environment.

Stalin said he was pleased that Tata Sons Chairman N Chandrasekaran personally attended the event, recalling his earlier request for him to be present when manufacturing began. He highlighted the Tata Group's contribution to India's development in sectors such as steel, IT, and automobiles, and praised the brand for its quality and reputation.

Tata Sons Chairman N Chandrasekaran said trade deals with the US, EU, UK, and UAE open global and Indian markets, creating huge opportunities. He praised the new Rs 9,000 crore Tata JLR plant in Tamil Nadu, which will produce ICE and electric vehicles, generating 5,000 jobs.

The Chief Minister noted that Tamil Nadu has a long association with the Tata Group and remains a leading hub for automobile and electric vehicle manufacturing. He welcomed Tata JLR into the state's expanding auto ecosystem and said the rollout of the first Land Rover vehicle was a moment of pride.

He attributed the state's progress to the Dravidian Model of governance and stressed the importance of converting investment agreements into operational projects. Stalin said the government would continue supporting investors, promoting women's empowerment, and organising an investors' meet. He encouraged Tata to expand further, particularly in research and development. The new greenfield plant will make conventional and electric vehicles and is expected to create about 5,000 direct jobs, strengthening regional growth and supply chains.

Indian Equities Safer From AI Bubble Risks

NEW DELHI

Indian equity markets are relatively shielded from potential AI bubble risks, says a report by Motilal Oswal Private Wealth. The report highlights that India's limited exposure to pure-play AI companies and a balanced market structure make it less vulnerable compared with global tech-heavy markets.

According to the data, while US "MAG7" stocks have a combined market value of USD 19.4 trillion—comparable to China's GDP and much higher than India's USD 4 trillion GDP—Indian markets remain less concentrated, reducing extreme valuation risks. Historical comparisons show that during the 1996–2000 dot-com boom, the Nasdaq 100 surged 643 per cent, whereas the Nifty 50 rose just 80 per cent. When the bubble burst, Nasdaq fell 75 per cent, but the Nifty dropped only 39 per cent, and in the recovery phase, Nifty outperformed significantly. Looking at recent trends from 2016 to 2026, Nasdaq returned 494 per cent versus Nifty 246 per cent, but its PE ratio expanded 88 per cent compared with 28 per cent for the Nifty 50. This indicates lower valuation froth in Indian equities.

The report concludes that India's diversified market, with less dependence on a few high-value technology stocks, provides resilience against sharp corrections. Investors in Indian markets are thus less exposed to the boom-bust cycles seen in global AI-driven stocks, making them relatively safer amid rising excitement around artificial intelligence.

Adani Secures Japanese Financing For Green Corridor

AHMEDABAD

Adani Energy Solutions (AESL) has obtained long-term funding from Japanese banks for its flagship high-voltage direct current (HVDC) green corridor project, aimed at enhancing renewable power flow in northern India. The 950-kilometre corridor will connect Bhadla, Rajasthan, to Fatehpur, Uttar Pradesh, with a 6,000 MW evacuation capacity.

Scheduled for commissioning by 2029, the HVDC network will integrate large-scale renewable energy into India's national grid, supporting grid stability and meeting growing clean energy demand. The corridor leverages advanced HVDC technology from Hitachi in collaboration with Bharat Heavy Electricals Limited (BHEL), strengthening domestic manufacturing under the Make-in-India initiative.

The financing is led by MUFG Bank and Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corporation, highlighting strong international confidence in India's renewable infrastructure. AESL said the project aligns with its sustainable debt framework and Equator Principles, allowing lenders to classify it as a Green Loan. Legal advisory was provided by Latham & Watkins and Saraf & Partners for the borrower, and Linklaters and Cyril Amarchand Mangaldas for the lenders.

Kandarp Patel, AESL CEO, called the project a "defining step" in building India's green transmission backbone, emphasizing the depth of India-Japan collaboration in clean energy. The initiative forms part of Adani Group's integrated clean energy platform, complementing Adani Green Energy Limited projects and Adani Electricity Mumbai Limited, which already integrates over 40 per cent renewable energy into its supply mix.

The corridor is expected to become a key transmission artery, enabling sustainable energy delivery to industrial and urban centres, accelerating India's energy transition, and reinforcing the country's commitment to a resilient, low-carbon power infrastructure.

Pakistan's Trade Deficit Soars Amid Export Decline

NEW DELHI

Pakistan's trade deficit with nine neighbouring countries widened sharply by 44.42 per cent to $7.683 billion in the first half of fiscal year 2025–26 (July–December), compared with $5.32 billion in the same period last year, according to State Bank of Pakistan data.

The widening gap was largely driven by falling exports, especially to China, Afghanistan, and Bangladesh. Trade with Afghanistan has been suspended since October 10, 2025, further limiting export flows. While exports to India rose marginally in percentage terms, their overall value remained insignificant. Exports to Bangladesh and Sri Lanka also declined during the period.

Total exports to Afghanistan, China, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, India, Iran, Nepal, Bhutan, and the Maldives dropped 18.56 per cent to $1.965 billion from $2.413 billion a year earlier. In contrast, imports from these countries rose 24.76 per cent to $9.648 billion from $7.733 billion.

China continued to dominate Pakistan's imports, which increased 25.61 per cent, while exports to China declined, highlighting persistent challenges in regional trade.

Gold, Silver Bounce Back After Volatile Week

MUMBAI

Gold and silver prices rebounded in Asian trade on Monday after last week's sharp swings, driven by weak safe-haven demand, profit booking, and uncertainty over US monetary policy.

Spot gold climbed 1.6 per cent to $5,038.38 an ounce, while April gold futures rose 1.7 per cent to $5,064.04. Silver gained more sharply, with spot prices surging 5.3 per cent to $82.178 an ounce, recovering from last week's lows near $60. Platinum remained largely unchanged around $2,105 an ounce.

Last week, precious metals saw wild swings after the nomination of Kevin Warsh as US Federal Reserve chairman boosted the dollar, prompting investors to book profits following recent rallies. Despite the correction, gold and silver are still up around 15 per cent and 5 per cent respectively this year, though below record highs reached in early February.

Analysts say institutional interest in gold remains strong. Data shows the People's Bank of China bought gold for the fifteenth consecutive month in January, while central banks globally continue purchases amid rising fiscal spending and economic uncertainty.

Safe-haven demand eased slightly after the US and Iran indicated progress in nuclear talks, agreeing to continue discussions. Market watchers now await US non-farm payrolls on Wednesday, CPI data on Friday, and Chinese inflation figures later this week, which could influence interest rate expectations and global stimulus outlooks.

Investors remain cautious as dollar movements, trade developments, and policy signals continue to drive precious metal market volatility.

SARVAM BEATS GIANTS

Indian Startup Sarvam Beats Global AI Rivals

MUMBAI

Bengaluru based startup Sarvam AI has said its new vision and speech models perform better than major global rivals in key tests for Indian languages. The company claimed its systems beat Google Gemini and ChatGPT in optical character recognition and text to speech benchmarks. In a social media post, co founder Pratyush Kumar said Sarvam Vision reached 84.3 per cent accuracy on the olmOCR Bench English subset, crossing results posted by larger frontier models.

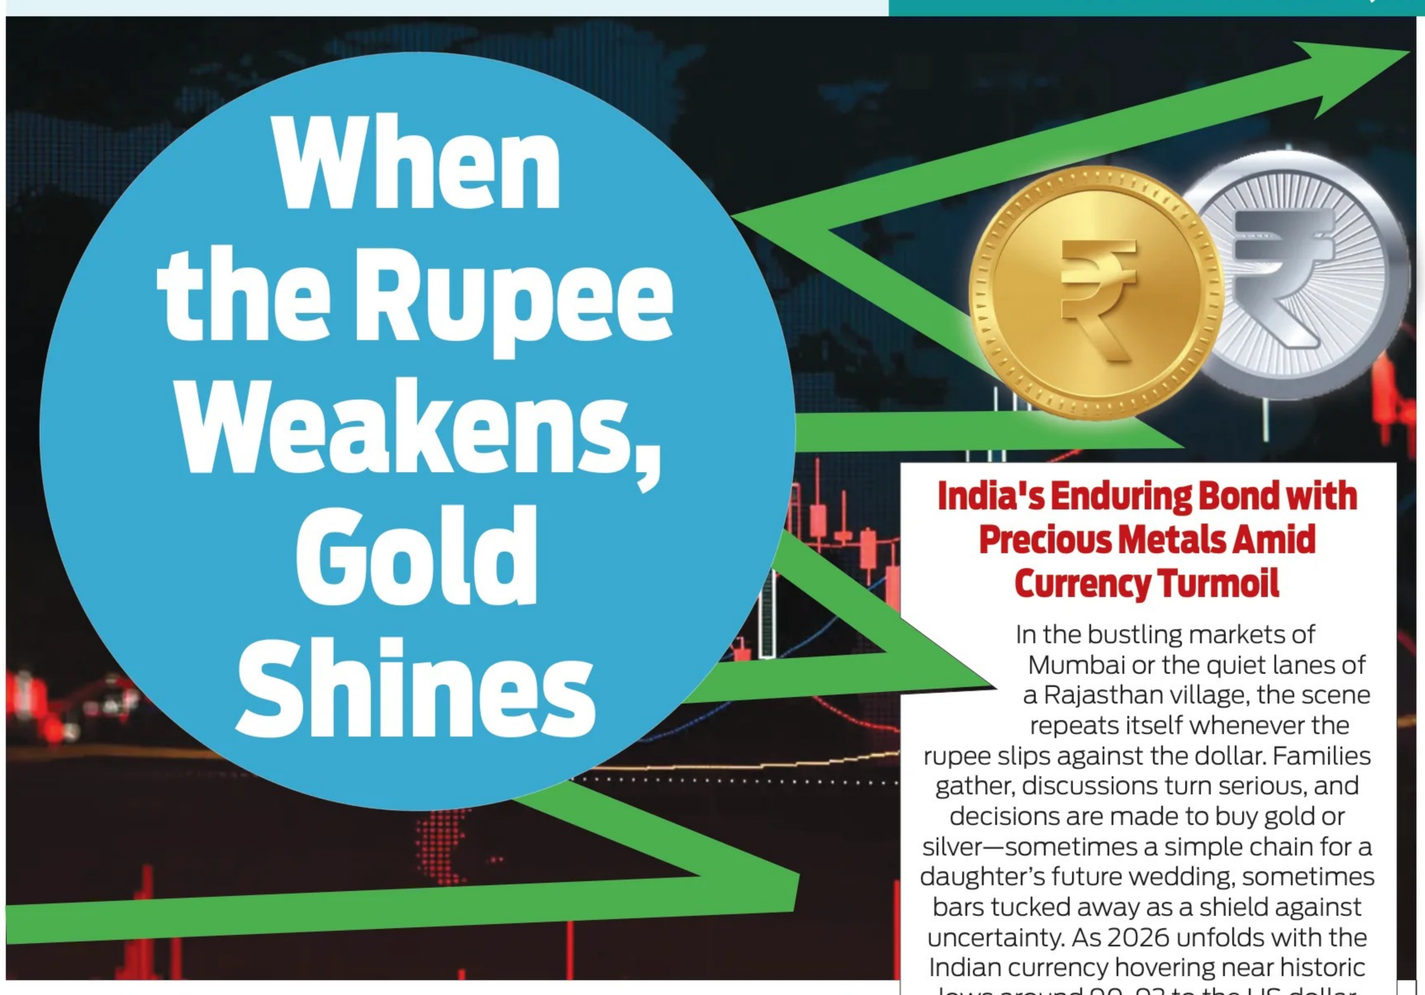
On another test, OmniDocBench version 1.5, the model scored 93.28 per cent overall, showing strong ability in reading complex formulas, charts, and page layouts. Kumar said the Bulbul V3 text to speech system supports 35 voices and works across all 22 scheduled Indian languages, even with low quality scans.

He added that Sarvam Vision is currently the strongest model for Indian language documents. The Vision series uses a three billion parameter model that can caption images, read scene text, understand charts, and parse difficult tables. Examples shared online showed accurate extraction of technical data from merged tables and charts from the latest Economic Survey.

Sarvam AI said its goal is to make artificial intelligence useful and accessible across India by building tools suited to local needs. Union IT minister Ashwini Vaishnaw also praised the work, saying it reflects the growing strength of India's national AI mission.

The startup said its research focuses on practical use cases such as governance, education, and business documents. By supporting every scheduled language, the tools aim to reduce dependence on foreign platforms and help citizens, firms, and public offices adopt digital services with greater trust, speed, and linguistic inclusion nationwide. Officials said the achievement signals rapid progress nationwide.

When the Rupee Weakens, Gold Shines

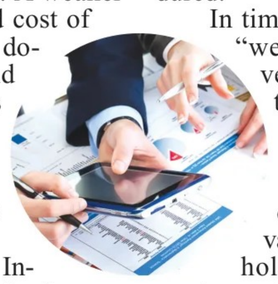


India's Enduring Bond with Precious Metals Amid Currency Turmoil

In the bustling markets of Mumbai or the quiet lanes of a Rajasthan village, the scene repeats itself whenever the rupee slips against the dollar. Families gather, discussions turn serious, and decisions are made to buy gold or silver—sometimes a simple chain for a daughter's future wedding, sometimes bars tucked away as a shield against uncertainty. As 2026 unfolds with the Indian currency hovering near historic lows around 90-92 to the US dollar after a roughly 5 percent depreciation in the previous year, precious metals have once again emerged as the trusted refuge. What was once primarily ornamental has become a sophisticated financial strategy, blending centuries-old culture with modern economic anxieties. This is not mere sentiment. When the rupee loses ground, the cost of importing gold and silver—so essential since India produces little domestically—rises sharply. Global prices, quoted in dollars, translate into steeper rupee figures. But the story runs deeper: inflation erodes savings in bank accounts, geopolitical storms rattle confidence, and paper currency feels less reliable. Households, retailers, and even institutions turn to the tangible gleam of bullion. This feature explores the intertwined psychology, economics, culture, and global forces driving India's precious metals surge as the rupee faces pressure.

The Safe-Haven Instinct: Psychology Meets Economics

At its core, the rush to gold and silver during currency stress reflects a primal human response: the desire for stability when systems wobble. Economically, precious metals serve as a hedge against depreciation and inflation. A weaker rupee increases the landed cost of imports, directly inflating domestic prices. Yet demand often holds firm or rises because buyers view these metals as stores of value that preserve purchasing power when fiat currencies falter.



Consider the mechanics. India's persistent trade deficits, fueled partly by energy and commodity imports, exert downward pressure on the rupee. Higher global interest rates or capital outflows exacerbate this. In such environments, gold shines because it has no counterparty risk—no government or bank can default on it. Silver follows a similar logic but with added industrial appeal. Psychologically, this taps into generational memory. Indians recall periods of high inflation or economic shocks where paper savings lost value while family gold endured.

In times of rupee weakness, the "wealth effect" works in reverse for currency but positively for bullion holders. A middle-class professional watching the rupee slide might see stock portfolios or fixed deposits lose real value to inflation, while gold holdings appreciate in local terms. This behavioral shift is pronounced among retail investors, who increasingly treat these metals as portfolio diversifiers rather than mere heirlooms. The result is a self-reinforcing cycle: depreciation lifts prices, which validates the safe-haven narrative, encouraging more buying.

DOLLAR DOMINANCE AND THE GLOBAL CURRENCY BACKDROP

The US dollar remains the world's primary reserve currency, and its movements profoundly influence Indian markets. When the dollar strengthens—often due to higher US interest rates or safe-haven flows during global uncertainty—the rupee typically weakens.

This dynamic directly inflates the rupee price of gold and silver, even if international bullion quotes remain steady.

In recent years, global monetary policy divergences have played a starring role. Periods of elevated US rates drew capital away from emerging markets like India, pressuring the currency.

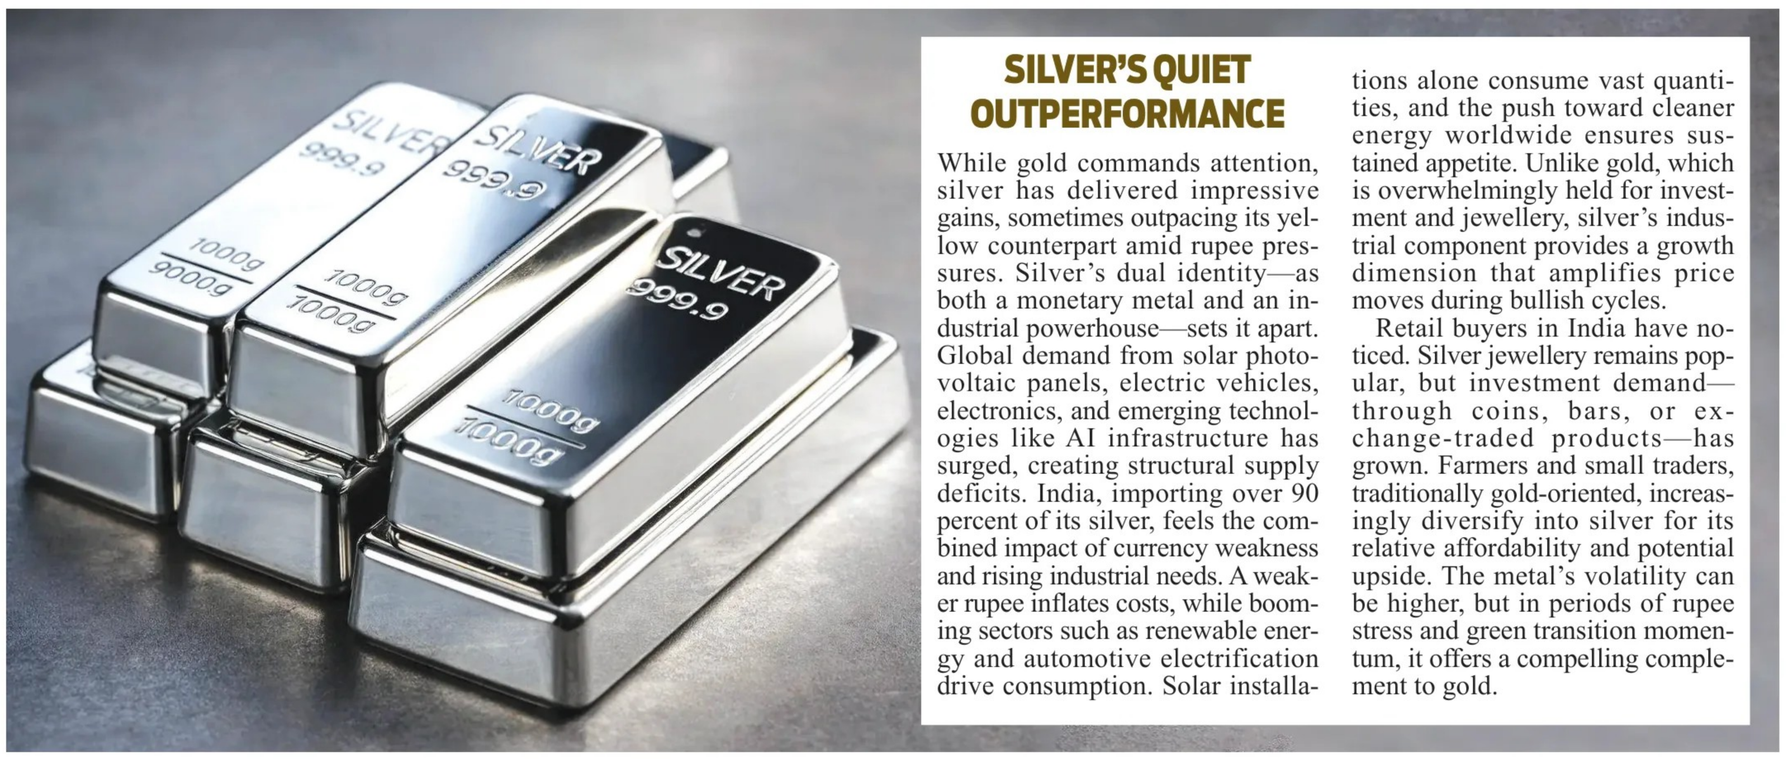
Trade tensions and tariff uncertainties added volatility, prompting investors worldwide to seek protection in precious metals. For India, the effect is amplified: as one of the largest importers, rupee depreciation raises the import bill, widening the trade gap and further weighing on the currency.

Central banks globally have responded by diversifying reserves away from pure dollar assets toward gold. This institutional buying supports prices, creating a tailwind for Indian buyers. Meanwhile, capital flows respond to interest rate differentials and growth outlooks. A resilient Indian economy attracts some investment, but persistent external vulnerabilities—such as oil dependence—keep the rupee sensitive.

The interplay means that even modest dollar strength can translate into significant local price spikes for bullion, turning global macro events into household realities.

From Wedding Gold to Wealth Protection

Gold's role in Indian society has long centered on culture. Weddings, festivals like Diwali and Akshaya Tritiya, and rituals demand jewellery, sustaining baseline demand. Yet a notable evolution is underway. As the rupee faces repeated bouts of weakness, families increasingly view gold purchases through a dual lens: tradition plus financial prudence. What was once bought primarily for adornment or status now doubles as an inflation hedge and legacy asset. Parents setting aside gold for a child's marriage recognize its portability and universal acceptance—qualities that shine during economic stress. In rural areas, where banking access may be limited or trust in financial institutions varies, physical gold remains the preferred store of wealth. Urban professionals, facing volatile equity markets or real estate illiquidity, allocate portions of savings to bullion or related instruments.



SILVER'S QUIET OUTPERFORMANCE

While gold commands attention, silver has delivered impressive gains, sometimes outpacing its yellow counterpart amid rupee pressures. Silver's dual identity—as both a monetary metal and an industrial powerhouse—sets it apart. Global demand from solar photovoltaic panels, electric vehicles, electronics, and emerging technologies like AI infrastructure has surged, creating structural supply deficits. India, importing over 90 percent of its silver, feels the combined impact of currency weakness and rising industrial needs. A weaker rupee inflates costs, while booming sectors such as renewable energy and automotive electrification drive consumption. Solar installations alone consume vast quantities, and the push toward cleaner energy worldwide ensures sustained appetite. Unlike gold, which is overwhelmingly held for investment and jewellery, silver's industrial component provides a growth dimension that amplifies price moves during bullish cycles.

Retail buyers in India have noticed. Silver jewellery remains popular, but investment demand—through coins, bars, or exchange-traded products—has grown. Farmers and small traders, traditionally gold-oriented, increasingly diversify into silver for its relative affordability and potential upside. The metal's volatility can be higher, but in periods of rupee stress and green transition momentum, it offers a compelling complement to gold.

Rupee's Struggles Across Currencies

- The rupee's challenges extend beyond the dollar. Depreciation against the euro, pound sterling, yen, and other majors compounds the effect on imported commodities like precious metals. Since global bullion markets price primarily in dollars, the USD-INR rate dominates.
- However, broader weakness signals systemic pressures—higher domestic inflation relative to trading partners, trade imbalances, and occasional risk-off sentiment in global markets.
- For instance, when the rupee slides against the euro or pound, it affects costs for European or British tourists or exporters, but the bullion link remains most direct via the dollar.
- A multi-currency lens reveals India's vulnerability to external shocks: oil priced in dollars, gold in dollars, and capital flows influenced by major central bank policies.
- Each dip in the rupee's value against this basket makes everyday imports costlier and boosts the appeal of assets that hold intrinsic worth independent of any single currency.

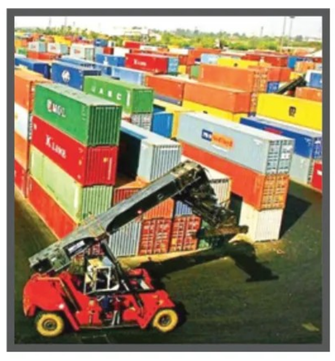
Questioning Faith in Paper Currency

- Gold's rise amid rupee weakness raises deeper questions about trust in fiat money.
- In an era of expanding money supplies and occasional fiscal strains, tangible assets offer psychological comfort.
- Central banks worldwide, including India's, have increased gold allocations in reserves, signaling institutional acknowledgment of diversification needs.
- For ordinary citizens, this manifests as a quiet preference for assets immune to debasement.
- Decades of gradual rupee depreciation have taught lessons: savings in bank deposits may yield nominal interest, but real returns can erode.
- Gold and silver, by contrast, have historically preserved value across generations.
- This erosion of confidence is not panic-driven but a measured response to observed realities—currency volatility, inflation spikes, and global uncertainties.

Imports, Trade Deficits, and the Bullion Rally

India's heavy reliance on gold and silver imports creates a feedback loop with the rupee. High volumes—gold imports reaching tens of billions of dollars annually, with silver showing even sharper percentage increases—widen the trade deficit. This deficit pressures the currency, raising import costs in a vicious circle that fuels higher local prices and sustains the rally.

Inflation adds fuel. Rising bullion prices can feed into broader price expectations, though their direct weight in consumer baskets is modest. Policymakers monitor this closely, occasionally adjusting duties or intervening in forex markets to stabilize the rupee. Yet demand resilience, driven by cultural and hedging motives, limits the effectiveness of such measures. The result is a bullion market that thrives even as authorities grapple with external balances.



Global Chaos, Local Consequences

Wars, trade disputes, rate cycles, and shifting alliances reverberate in Indian bullion shops. Geopolitical tensions elevate safe-haven demand worldwide, lifting dollar-denominated prices. A weaker dollar in some phases can further boost gold, while persistent risks keep buyers engaged. For India, events half a world away—conflicts affecting energy prices or supply chains—translate into costlier imports and a softer rupee, reinforcing the metals' allure.

Recent years illustrate this transmission: tariff uncertainties, regional conflicts, and policy shifts have all contributed to volatility that funnels capital toward precious metals. Indian investors, attuned to these global currents through media and markets, respond by securing physical assets.

Retail Investors and Institutional Players

Households remain the dominant force, holding vast quantities—tens of thousands of tonnes collectively, representing enormous wealth. This grassroots demand often exceeds official buying. The central bank maintains significant reserves, around 880 tonnes, whose value has risen with prices and supports overall forex buffers. Globally, central banks have been net buyers, providing a floor under prices.

The contrast is instructive: retail buyers seek protection and tradition, while institutions pursue diversification and reserve management. Together, they create robust demand that sustains rallies even amid temporary corrections.

Looking Beyond the Dollar

While the dollar-rupee axis is central, rupee movements against the pound, euro, yen, and others reshape investment calculus. Broader depreciation signals the need for assets uncorrelated with any single currency regime. Investors increasingly consider multi-currency exposures, but gold and silver retain primacy for their universal acceptance and historical role.

This perspective encourages portfolio rethinking: blending bullion with equities, bonds, and other hedges to navigate an era of currency flux.

Reflections on an Uncertain Future

As the rupee navigates ongoing challenges, gold and silver's shine persists. Cultural roots, economic necessities, and global forces converge to make precious metals more than ornaments—they are shields, legacies, and stores of hope. Policymakers face the delicate task of managing imports and deficits without stifling legitimate demand, while families weigh tradition against opportunity.

The outlook remains dynamic. Structural drivers like industrial needs for silver and diversification for gold suggest sustained relevance. Yet volatility is inherent; corrections can occur with stronger currencies or resolved uncertainties. For millions of Indians, the lesson endures: when currencies waver, the enduring metals offer reassurance.

In homes across the nation, the quiet accumulation continues—not out of fear alone, but from a deep-seated wisdom that some values transcend paper and policy.

Man City snatch chaotic 2-1 win at Liverpool

Haaland penalty stuns Anfield as City claw back to revive title chase

LIVERPOOL

Erling Haaland's stoppage-time penalty capped a breathless finale as Manchester City pulled off a dramatic 2-1 comeback win against Liverpool at Anfield, keeping the Premier League title race alive and trimming the gap to leaders Arsenal to six points.

Liverpool looked set for a crucial victory after Dominik Szoboszlai broke the deadlock in the 74th minute with a sublime, swerving free kick that left City goalkeeper Gianluigi Donnarumma rooted to the spot. The goal ignited Anfield and appeared to push Pep Guardiola's side towards a damaging nine-point deficit in the title race.

City, however, responded with trademark resilience. Bernardo Silva led the charge, equalising late when Haaland smartly headed a cross into his path for a close-range finish. The pressure mounted in a chaotic closing stretch that saw controversy, VAR drama and raw emotion spill across the pitch.

Deep into stoppage time, City were handed a lifeline when Matheus Nunes was brought down by Liverpool goalkeeper Alisson after being sent through on the right. Haaland stepped up and calmly converted the penalty — his 21st league goal of the season — silencing the Anfield crowd and scoring his first Premier League goal at the famous ground.

Moments earlier, City's Rayan Cherki appeared to have scored from near the halfway line after Alisson had ventured forward, but the goal was ruled out following a VAR check. Szoboszlai was also sent off in the aftermath for pulling Haaland's shirt, adding to the sense of chaos.

City had dominated possession early, with Haaland denied by a swift Alisson in the second minute. Liverpool, who struggled for attacking fluency in the first half, were transformed after the break but ultimately paid for defensive lapses late on.

The victory keeps Guardiola's side firmly in the title hunt, while Liverpool slipped to sixth, now 11 points behind City. As Bernardo Silva admitted later, defeat would likely have ended City's hopes — instead, they march on, breathing new life into the race.

Dembélé stars as PSG crushes bitter rival Marseille 5-0 to regain top spot

PARIS

Ballon d'Or winner inspires ruthless PSG display in historic Ligue 1 rout

Ballon d'Or winner Ousmane Dembélé delivered a masterclass with two goals and an assist as Paris Saint-Germain humiliated bitter rival Marseille 5-0, reclaiming top spot in Ligue 1 with their most emphatic victory ever in the storied rivalry.

The dominant win restored PSG's two-point lead over Lens after 21 rounds and pushed Marseille down to fourth place, behind Lyon. Marseille's surprise 1-0 victory over PSG earlier this season already feels like a distant memory.

"We wanted to send a message that we're back," Dembélé said after the match. "It was almost perfect." PSG coach Luis Enrique echoed the sentiment, calling it a historic day for the club's supporters. "It's an important day for our fans because 5-0 against Marseille had never happened before," he said.

Dembélé opened the scoring in the 12th minute, side-footing home a cross from Nuno Mendes after a rapid counterattack. He doubled PSG's lead in the 37th minute, capitalising on a costly defensive error from Marseille captain Leonardo Balerdi, dribbling past him before firing into the roof of the net.

Marseille's night unravelled further after the break. A Facundo Medina own goal extended PSG's lead before Dembélé turned provider, setting up Khvicha Kvaratskhelia for a clinical volley. Substitute Lee Kang-in completed the rout with a composed finish late on.

Marseille coach Roberto De Zerbi apologised to fans after another demoralising display, coming less than two weeks after a Champions League exit to Club Brugge. His decision to drop goalkeeper Geronimo Rulli backfired, with replacement Jeffrey de Lange enduring a torrid evening behind a fragile defence.

Top scorer Mason Greenwood and fellow attackers Amine Gouiri and Ethan Nwaneri were largely anonymous, while veteran Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang remained unused on the bench.

Despite early scrutiny after past incidents, PSG fans largely behaved, though referee Willy Delajod briefly halted play following discriminatory chants midway through the second half.

The crushing defeat underlined PSG's authority in Ligue 1 and sent a clear warning to their title rivals as the season enters its decisive phase.

Mbappe strike seals gritty Madrid win as Atletico lose ground in title race

Real Madrid edge Valencia to stay on Barca's tail, Atletico slump

BARCELONA

Kylian Mbappe struck late to crown a hard-fought 2-0 victory for Real Madrid at Valencia, keeping the champions firmly on Barcelona's heels at the top of La Liga, while third-placed Atletico Madrid suffered a damaging home defeat to Real Betis.

Mbappe's 23rd league goal of the season ensured Madrid closed the gap on leaders Barcelona to just one point after the Catalans' win over Mallorca a day earlier. Atletico, meanwhile, slipped to a 1-0 loss at the Metropolitano, leaving Diego Simeone's side 13 points adrift of Barca and losing momentum in the title race.

Missing suspended Vinicius Junior and injured Jude Bellingham, Madrid lacked their usual attacking sparkle at Mestalla but showed patience and defensive solidity. After a goalless first half, left-back Alvaro Carreras broke the deadlock midway through the second period, cutting in from the flank and finishing neatly with his weaker right foot.

Valencia pushed for an equaliser and came close when Lucas Beltran struck the post, but Madrid held firm. In stoppage time, Brahim Diaz set up Mbappe for a simple close-range finish to secure all three points.

"It was a game that required patience and focus," said Madrid coach Alvaro Arbeloa. "We were solid and deserved the win." He reserved special praise for Mbappe, suggesting the French star could one day rival Cristiano Ronaldo's legacy at the club.

Valencia remain 17th, just one point above the relegation zone, with frustrated fans voicing their anger inside Mestalla.

Elsewhere, Atletico Madrid were unable to replicate their midweek Copa del Rey demolition of Betis, falling to a first-half strike from Antony. The Brazilian winger curled home after 28 minutes, giving Betis revenge for Thursday's 5-0 cup loss and boosting their push for a top-four finish.

Atletico thought they had equalised late on through an own goal, but Antoine Griezmann was ruled marginally offside. "We weren't as good as in the cup," admitted captain Koke after a frustrating night.

In other matches, Athletic Bilbao beat Levante 4-2, Sevilla drew 1-1 with Girona, and Getafe won 2-0 at Alaves.

Lindsey Vonn breaks leg in Winter Olympics downhill crash

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO (ITALY)

Lindsey Vonn's courageous bid to win an Olympic downhill title at the age of 41 ended in dramatic fashion after a frightening crash left the American skiing icon with a broken leg during the women's downhill at the 2026 Winter Olympics.

Vonn lost control just seconds after leaving the start house, clipping a gate with her right shoulder before tumbling violently down the slope. She came to rest awkwardly on her back, skis tangled beneath her, as her cries echoed across the course and a stunned silence fell over spectators near the finish.

Medical personnel rushed to her aid and treated her on the snow for several minutes before she was strapped to a gurney and airlifted from the course by helicopter — the second such evacuation for Vonn in nine days. She was first taken to a clinic in Cortina d'Ampezzo and later transferred to a hospital in Treviso.

In a statement, Ca' Foncello hospital said Vonn underwent an orthopedic procedure to stabilize a fracture in her left leg and was being treated by a multidisciplinary medical team. The U.S. Ski Team confirmed she was in stable condition.

"She'll be OK, but it's going to be a process," said Anouk Patty, chief of sport for U.S. Ski and Snowboard. "This sport is brutal, and these athletes are throwing themselves down a mountain at incredible speeds."

The crash cast a shadow over an otherwise historic race for the United States, as Breezy Johnson became only the second American woman to win Olympic downhill gold, following Vonn's triumph at the 2010 Vancouver Games. Johnson described the moment as bittersweet, acknowledging the emotional toll of seeing her teammate injured.

Vonn, a four-time overall World Cup champion and widely regarded as one of the greatest skiers of all time, had returned to elite competition after nearly six years away, overcoming multiple knee surgeries to contend once more for Olympic glory.

"This race has been the talk of the Games," said International Ski and Snowboard Federation president Johan Eliasch. "All I can say is thank you for what she has done for our sport."

US Olympians face backlash, including criticism from Trump

MILAN

Several U.S. Olympians competing at the Milan-Cortina Winter Games have found themselves at the center of a political storm after speaking candidly about domestic issues back home, drawing fierce online backlash — including pointed criticism from U.S. President Donald Trump.

The controversy erupted after reporters asked American athletes at a news conference how they felt representing the United States amid heightened immigration enforcement under the Trump administration. Freestyle skier Hunter Hess said he felt conflicted, explaining that wearing the flag did not mean endorsing every government policy.

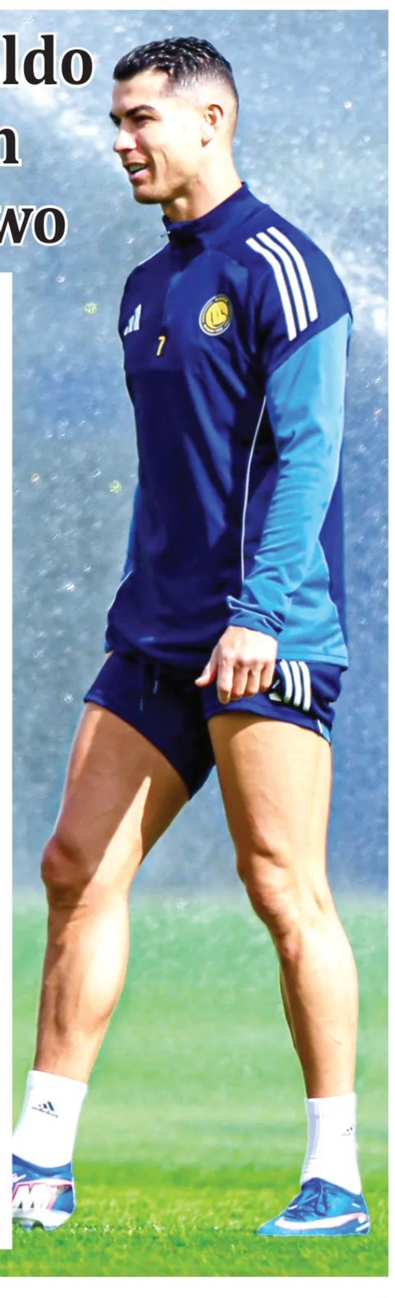
"Just because I'm wearing the flag doesn't mean I represent everything that's going on in the U.S.," Hess said, adding that he was competing on behalf of the people who helped him reach the Olympics.

His remarks quickly ignited criticism on social media. Among those responding was influencer Jake Paul, who wrote on X that athletes unhappy with the country should "go live somewhere else." President Trump amplified the backlash a day later, calling Hess "a real Loser" on his Truth Social platform and saying it was hard to cheer for Olympians who question their country.

Hess was not alone. Freestyle skier Chris Lillis said he was "heartbroken" by immigration policies and urged Americans to focus on respecting everyone's rights. Figure skater Amber Glenn also spoke about challenges faced by the LGBTQ+ community during the Trump administration.

The comments prompted a wave of online abuse. Glenn later revealed she had received "a scary amount of hate and threats," forcing her to limit social media use for her mental health.

Al-Nassr hopeful Ronaldo will return for Asian Champions League Two



RIYADH

Al-Nassr are hopeful Cristiano Ronaldo will return to action on Wednesday as the Saudi club bids to move closer to silverware in the Asian Champions League Two, with a quarterfinal place at stake against Arkadag of Turkmenistan.

The 41-year-old Portuguese superstar has yet to win a major trophy since arriving in Saudi Arabia, and his absence from Al-Nassr's last two Saudi Pro League matches has fuelled speculation about his future. Reports suggested Ronaldo was unhappy with the club's funding model, particularly after rivals Al-Hilal strengthened further by signing Karim Benzema in January.

Al-Nassr, along with Al-Hilal, Al-Ittihad and Al-Ahli, are all majority owned by Saudi Arabia's Public Investment Fund, but the Saudi Pro League moved to play down the controversy. In a statement, the SPL stressed that no individual player dictates league-wide decisions.

"The Saudi Pro League is structured around a simple principle: every club operates independently under the same rules," the statement said, while adding that Ronaldo has played an important role in Al-Nassr's growth and ambition since his arrival.

Despite Ronaldo's absence, Al-Nassr showed their strength by beating reigning league champions Al-Ittihad 2-0 on Friday, underlining their depth ahead of the continental clash with Arkadag.

Al-Ittihad's defeat came at a delicate time, with the club still battling for qualification in the top-tier AFC Champions League Elite. They remain the only Saudi side yet to seal a place in the round of 16, although victory over Al-Gharafa of Qatar on Tuesday would secure progression.

BWF unveils sweeping overhaul to reshape global badminton

KUALA LUMPUR

The Badminton World Federation (BWF) on Monday announced a sweeping restructuring of the global badminton calendar from 2027, unveiling an expanded World Tour, significantly higher prize money and revamped competition formats aimed at accelerating the sport's global growth.

The reforms follow the extension of BWF's long-term agreement with broadcast and commercial partner Infront through to 2034, a move that underpins the federation's ambition to make badminton more visible, commercially attractive and player-centric.

Under the new framework, the number of TV-produced badminton matches will more than double, rising from 1,410 to around 3,000 across all BWF tournaments worldwide. At the heart of the changes is a revamped BWF World Tour featuring 36 tournaments organised into a six-tier structure: the World Tour Finals, five Super 1000 events, five Super 750, nine Super 500, eight Super 300 and eight Super 100 tournaments, with Super 100 events integrated into the main tour for the first time.

The five Super 1000 tournaments, to be staged across Asia and Europe, will feature expanded formats. Singles events will include 48 players competing in a group stage followed by knockouts, while doubles events will have 32-pair knockout draws. Each Super 1000 tournament will run for 11 days across two weekends, with all 1,095 matches broadcast globally.

BWF said the total annual prize pool on the World Tour will increase to approximately USD 26.9 million. Prize money will rise to USD 2 million for Super 1000 events, USD 1.1 million for Super 750, USD 560,000 for Super 500, USD 290,000 for Super 300 and USD 140,000 for Super 100 tournaments.

Surya's calm leadership has made my life easy: Gambhir

Gautam Gambhir credits Suryakumar Yadav's composure for easing coaching pressures during T20 World Cup

NEW DELHI

India head coach Gautam Gambhir has lauded T20I captain Suryakumar Yadav's calm and player-centric leadership, saying it has significantly eased the pressures of his high-profile role, especially in the shortest format of the game.

Gambhir said India are fortunate to have Suryakumar leading the side in the ongoing T20 World Cup, describing him as a leader who "ticks every box". The clip did not specify when the interaction took place.

"Surya has made my life a lot easier in this format," Gambhir said. "He is a phenomenal leader of men. Not just because of what he does on the field or how he bats, but because of how he relates to players, how he speaks to them and how much time he spends with them."

Gambhir highlighted Suryakumar's relaxed demeanour as a key asset, particularly in high-pressure situations. "He is so calm on the field that, as a coach, you can focus on many other things knowing the atmosphere in the team is under control. That's something any coach can dream of," he added.

India began their World Cup campaign on a winning note on Saturday, defeating the USA after being jolted by an early top-order collapse. Suryakumar played a pivotal role in the recovery, scoring a fluent 84 off 49 balls to steer the team to a competitive total and eventual victory against spirited opposition.

"For me, Surya the player can be kept aside, but Surya the leader has ticked every box," Gambhir said. "His heart is in the right place and he takes the right decisions, especially under pressure." India will face Namibia in their next group match on Thursday. Suryakumar, 35, took over the T20I captaincy weeks after India's World Cup triumph two years ago, following Rohit Sharma's retirement from the format.

ICC T20 WC 2026: Minnows will have their time under the sun

Early matches show smaller nations pushing giants, reaffirming T20 cricket's unpredictability worldwide

MUMBAI

The ICC T20 World Cup 2026 is barely three days old, but it has already delivered a sharp reminder of why the shortest format remains the most unforgiving—and entertaining—version of the game. The minnows are not just making up the numbers; they are competing, challenging and, on occasion, pushing the heavyweights to the brink.

Nepal came agonisingly close to pulling off one of the great World Cup upsets, stretching two-time champions England to a tense four-run finish in their Group D clash. A day earlier at the same venue, rank outsiders USA had reigning champions India reeling after a dramatic top-order collapse in a Group A encounter.

Former India captain and coach Rahul Dravid had warned of such scenarios even before the tournament began. While tipping India as favourites, Dravid spoke candidly about the inherent uncertainty of T20 cricket. "It's about the better team on the day. Anybody can play a good knock and upset you," he said at a recent Bengaluru event. "One bad day in the office can undo everything."

That sentiment played out vividly against Nepal, who chased England's 184 for seven with fearless intent, finishing on a remarkable 180 for six. England's Will Jacks admitted his side was "relieved" after the narrow escape, while Nepal captain Nandan Yadav spoke of mixed emotions—pride in competing with an elite side and regret at falling just short. The USA, too, earned plaudits despite a 29-run defeat to India. After reducing the champions to 77 for six, the Associate nation forced skipper Suryakumar Yadav into a rescue act, his unbeaten 84 off 49 balls lifting India to 161 for nine before Mohammed Siraj sealed the win.

History suggests this is no anomaly. From Namibia stunning Sri Lanka in 2022 to USA beating Pakistan in 2024, the T20 World Cup has thrived on such moments. Early signs from the India–Sri Lanka co-hosted 2026 edition suggest the tradition is set to continue, with the minnows ready to enjoy their time under the sun.

KL Rahul's class and Smaran's fearlessness power K'taka into Ranji semis

Fans react as Rahul, Ravichandran chase 325 to knock Mumbai out

MUMBAI

Karnataka produced one of the finest run chases in recent Ranji Trophy history as KL Rahul and Smaran Ravichandran led a stunning four-wicket win over Mumbai, chasing down 325 to book a place in the semi-finals of the 2025–26 season. The dramatic victory at the BKC Ground on Monday sparked an outpouring of reactions from fans, who hailed the knock as a reminder of Karnataka's pedigree in India's premier domestic competition.

Social media was flooded with praise for Rahul's composure and authority under pressure, with many calling it a "vintage KL Rahul innings" in a crunch knockout match. Fans also showered admiration on Smaran Ravichandran, celebrating the youngster's fearless strokeplay against an experienced Mumbai attack in hostile conditions.

The quarter-final had swung wildly over four days. Karnataka seized early control when Prasidh Krishna and Vidwath Kaverappa ripped through Mumbai for 120 in the first innings, before Shreyas Gopal cleaned up the tail. Mumbai, however, fought back hard. Mayank Agarwal's gritty 92 helped Karnataka secure only a modest 53-run lead, keeping the contest finely balanced.

Mumbai then flipped the script in their second innings. Contributions from Musheer Khan, Akash Anand and Tanush Kotian powered the defending champions to 377, setting Karnataka a daunting target of 325 in the final innings — a chase few gave them a chance to complete.

What followed left fans stunned. After an early setback, Rahul produced a masterclass, scoring a sublime 130 to register his 24th first-class century. At the other end, Smaran Ravichandran played with maturity beyond his years, counter-attacking when required and easing the pressure on the senior batter.

Their 147-run partnership broke Mumbai's resistance and silenced the home crowd.

USA, Pak eye improvements with bat in another T20 WC showdown

COLOMBO

Pakistan and the USA will look to address their batting inconsistencies when they meet in a much-anticipated T20 World Cup clash in Colombo on Tuesday, a fixture still coloured by memories of a dramatic upset 20 months ago.

On their World Cup debut in 2024, the USA stunned Pakistan, a result that continues to linger for the men in green. This encounter offers Pakistan an opportunity for redemption, while the Americans, coming off a defeat to India in their 2026 opener, will be eager to show that their earlier triumph was no accident.

Pakistan arrive with concerns despite a win over the Netherlands. Chasing 148, they cruised early before a sudden middle-order collapse nearly derailed them, only for Faheem Ashraf to steer the side home. Captain Salman Ali Agha admitted his team struggled to manage pressure once wickets fell and stressed the need for set batters to finish innings. Agha himself will be under scrutiny after promoting his position in the order. Attention will also be on Babar Azam's return to the T20 setup and opener Saim Ayub, whose recent contributions have been stronger with the ball than the bat.

The USA impressed with the ball against India but faltered in the powerplay with the bat.

Davis Cup qualifiers: India's Dhakshineswar Suresh seals epic win over Dutch

BENGALURU

India rode on the grit and brilliance of Dhakshineswar Suresh to clinch a memorable 3-2 victory over the Netherlands in the Davis Cup Qualifiers Round 1 tie at the SM Krishna Tennis Stadium, sealing a place in the next round scheduled for September.

After nearly eight hours of intense tennis spread across two days, the contest came down to the final reverse singles rubber with the tie locked at 2-2. Rising to the occasion once again, the 25-year-old from Madurai held his nerve to defeat Guy Den Ouden 6-4, 7-6 (4), sparking wild celebrations among players and fans alike.

Dhakshineswar had already played a pivotal role earlier in the tie. With India trailing 0-1 after the opening singles on Day 1, he replaced Sriram Balaji to partner Yuki Bhambri in the doubles rubber. The pair produced a stirring performance, edging past David Pel and Sander Arends 7-6 (0), 3-6, 7-6 (1) in a three-hour battle to level the tie at 1-1.

India briefly took the lead on the final day when Sumit Nagal showed admirable intent in the first reverse singles, winning the opening set against Jesper De Jong. However, the Dutchman fought back strongly to prevail 5-7, 6-1, 6-4, forcing the tie into a decider. Once again, the spotlight fell on Dhakshineswar. Displaying composure beyond his years, he combined solid serving with sharp net play to keep Den Ouden under constant pressure. The second set tie-break proved decisive, with the Indian winning key points to close out the match and the tie.

The victory marks one of India's most dramatic Davis Cup wins in recent years and underlines the emergence of Dhakshineswar as a key figure in the national setup. Lifted on the shoulders of his teammates after the final point, the normally reserved youngster soaked in the moment, having single-handedly propelled India into the next round.

Indian Racing Festival: Street racing is about resilience, says Kichcha Sudeep

BENGALURU

As the streets of Goa prepare to transform into a high-octane racing arena for the Indian Racing Festival (IRF) on February 14 and 15, Kannada star and Kings Bengaluru owner Kichcha Sudeep says street racing is the ultimate test of resilience, instinct and composure — qualities he believes define his team.

The newly built Goa Street Circuit will make its debut as it hosts Round 4 of the 2025 Indian Racing League, presenting drivers with an unforgiving layout and no historical data to lean on. For Sudeep, that unpredictability is precisely what sets street racing apart.

"On a permanent circuit, everything is controlled. A street race changes the mindset completely," Sudeep said. "Here, it's no longer about perfection; it's about resilience. The city comes alive around you, and the team has to rise with it."

He believes street racing brings motorsport closer to the public, transforming it into a shared urban spectacle. "It brings the sport out of closed circuits and into the heart of the city. The energy of the people keeps the team alert and sharp every second," he added.

Preparation for Goa has required adaptability rather than routine. "This circuit is about mastering the unknown. We're trusting our drivers' instincts, discipline and experience. Precision and control will matter more than outright speed," Sudeep said.

Leading Kings Bengaluru is French racer Sachel Rotge, the 2025 F4 India Vice Champion, alongside Ruhaan Alva, the youngest race winner in Indian Racing League history, who continues to impress on international podiums. The squad is further strengthened by karting vice world champion Kyle Kumaran and British racer Jem Hepworth, a podium finisher in the McLaren Trophy.

"Street circuits are unforgiving. One small mistake can cost everything," Sudeep said. "Drivers must respect the walls but never fear them. That balance is where races are won." As Kings Bengaluru head to Goa, Sudeep believes they carry the spirit of the city with them — resilient, ambitious and ready to take on the unknown.

Italy captain Wayne Madsen suffers shoulder dislocation

Italy rocked as skipper Wayne Madsen injured while fielding in opener

KOLKATA

Italy's T20 World Cup campaign suffered a major blow after captain Wayne Madsen dislocated his shoulder while fielding during their opening group match against Scotland at the Eden Gardens.

The 42-year-old sustained the injury in the fourth over of Scotland's innings when he attempted a diving stop at mid-wicket on the practice pitches adjacent to the main square. Madsen landed awkwardly on his left side and was immediately seen clutching his arm in visible discomfort. After receiving on-field attention from the medical staff, he walked off the ground with his left arm placed in a makeshift sling.

Broadcast commentators later confirmed that Madsen would take no further part in the match. In addition to the shoulder dislocation, he is set to undergo further medical evaluations, including assessments for concussion and a possible neck injury, adding to Italy's concerns.

The injury comes at a particularly inopportune moment for Italy, who were looking to make a strong start in a competitive group. Madsen is a pivotal figure in the side, not only as captain but also as a senior batter whose experience anchors the middle order. His absence was immediately felt as Italy were forced to reshuffle both their fielding setup and leadership responsibilities mid-match.

Team officials said more clarity on the extent of the injury and Madsen's availability for the remainder of the tournament would emerge after detailed medical scans. A prolonged absence could significantly dent Italy's hopes, given the limited depth in leadership and experience within the squad.

Madsen, who has been a driving force behind Italy's rise in associate cricket, has featured prominently in recent qualification campaigns and remains one of the oldest players in the competition. His fitness will now be closely monitored as Italy await updates ahead of their upcoming fixtures.
